Careful Selection Breeds Results For Coldsprings

MICHELLE RANCK
Lancaster Farming Staff

Editor's Note: Recently Marlin Hoff of Coldsprings Farm was selected to receive the National Dairy Shrine's Distinguished Dairy Cattle Breeder Award for 2000. The award is given annually to a breeder who has proven, through successful genetic and business management, that he or she is forward-thinking and working to improve cattle breeds. Hoff will be honored at the National Dairy Shrine's 51st Anniversary Awards Banquet in October in conjunction with World Dairy Expo in Madison, Wisconsin.

NEW WINDSOR, Md. "For forever I've been looking for the complete cow," said Marlin Hoff, echoing the sentiment of every dairy farmer. This quest for the complete cow has led Hoff to build a herd of quality genetics and has garnered the farm national recognition.

As a recent recipient of the Dairy Cattle Breeder Award, Hoff is doing his part to improve the Holstein breed.

"If cows have changed in the last 50 years, they've lost substance and gotten smaller. I don't think that needs to continue," he said. Hoff continues to look for "the cow that produces well and lasts a long time."

Bulls, of course, play an important role in the farm's program. Hoff uses top AI bulls. "Probably the best rule of thumb is bulls with high TPI, which in-

Empire Farm Days' Program Expands, Hosts Youth Event

ANDY ANDREWS

SENECA FALLS, N.Y. — More than 100 acres of agricultural displays will fill the site of this year's Empire Farm Days, scheduled Aug. 8-10 here at the Rodman Lott and Son Farm.

Since 1988, the farm has been the site of New York's largest agricultural showcase event, billed by some as the Northeast's largest farm show.

According to show manager Melanie Wickham, the exhibit area has been expanded on the east side of the show.

Wickham, who spoke to Lancaster Farming Wednesday, noted the demonstrations used to be located farther north and east of the exhibits, but are now closer.

"The ability to have the field demonstrations close to the exhibit area is a plus for the show," she said. "We were able to expand without a major disruption to the demonstration acreage."

For the first time, Empire Farm Days serves as host to the New York State FFA and New York 4-H Tractor Operators Contest. About 100 young students from across the state will compete Thursday, Aug. 10, in the contest at the southeast corner of the exhibit area.

Empire Farm Days, with its 67th annual show, features more than 600 exhibitors and highlights new ag technology, improved and enlarged timber, construction, and livestock displays, and some of the largest ag machinery and equipment displays east of Louisville, Ky.

The show, on more than 300 acres, also features dairy profit seminars, an antique tractor display, and field demonstrations.

The field equipment schedule includes corn/hay chopping 10 a.m. daily, hay mowing 11 a.m. daily, tillage 1 p.m. daily, and hay (raking, baling, and handling) at 2 p.m. every day.

About 75,000 farmers and agribusiness representatives attended last year's event. This year Wickham noted that it is difficult to predict how many will attend, but the organizers expect a good crowd, with numbers reaching from 75,000-100,000, she told Lancaster Farming.

Following are some show highlights:

• Demonstration Tent. This area at the south end of the demo field will be used again this year as a headquarters for

The second year for the 4-H goat show at the Lebanon Area Fair showcased young talent and quality animals for the North Mountain Market Goat Club. Travis Dresch, 10, right, took home grand champion honors with "Cyrus" and Katie Eckert, 10, won reserve champion placing with "Andy." Dr. Robert Herr of "Nix Besser" farm judged the event and donated hats to the two young exhibitors. Full report on page A32.

Disaster Relief Final Payments

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — This week at the Lebanon Area Fair Agriculture Secretary Samuel E. Hayes Jr. presented a symbolic check to Lebanon farmers. This presentation comes on the heels of the recent announcement that final payments under the Crop Loss Program have been made, bringing the 1999 drought disaster relief program to a close.

"By responding to the overwhelming need created by last year's drought, the Commonwealth clearly led the way over any other Mid-Atlantic or Northeastern state," Hayes said. "I am very proud of our producers for managing through a very difficult crop year."

Hayes commended Gov. Ridge and Pennsylvania lawmakers for the quick response with the $70.6 million assistance package, which made a real difference in helping farm families across the Commonwealth.

"With the initial $5 million, Hay Assistance Program in place to lead the way, followed soon thereafter by the $60 million Crop Loss Program, and continuing with the $5.6 million for Crop Insurance, Pennsylvania farmers had a way to help manage one of the toughest droughts in recent history," Hayes said.

To date, the area consisting of Lebanon, Lancaster, Berks.

Test Your Ability To Predict Beef Quality

Can you accurately determine feeder cattle value by eyeing up a steer? Guess ribeye area? Approximate Yield and Quality grades? This is your chance to test your skills. Recently Lancaster County cattle feeders had the opportunity to try the "Fantasy Beef Quality Challenge," a contest which highlighted the difficulty of predicting cattle value by visual appraisal only. Turn to page A36 to find a full report plus pictures and a score card to participate in the contest.

CATTLE: Compared to last week's closing prices, slaughter steers and heifers closed 2.00-3.00 lower, with stiff losses late in the week. The fat cattle market has slipped steadily lower all summer, but the rug came out from under prices on Thursday. Lower futures, dressed beef, and Western markets along with a large steer run and lackadaisical buyers took it's toll. Buyers took their seats Thursday with a sharply lower market in mind, and conditions were evident on the first bunch sold. Midwestern feeders are also suffering and this week settled for 64.00 live and mostly 102.00 dressed, which was 1.00-

Daily National Grain Market Summary

St. Joseph, MO
Wed Aug 02, 2000
Report Supplied By USDA
USDA-MO Dept Ag Market News

Daily National Grain Market Summary

Grain and soybean bids moved slightly higher due to weather forecasts calling for hotter, drier conditions next week in the Midwest and Corn Belt areas. Corn, however, showed some weakness due to continued good crop condition ratings and lack of export demand. Wheat bids advanced on very good overnight export order from Egypt. Wheat steady to 2 cents higher. Corn mixed, 2 cents higher to 1 cent lower. Sorghum 1 cent higher. Soybeans 3 to 5 cents higher

Export interest picked up for wheat overnight as Egypt bought a sub- stantial amount of soft white and soft red winter wheat. Reports that Libya and Tunisia may tender for US wheat soon was also positive for bids.

The spring wheat tour reported higher expected yield potential, limiting gains.

Corn and soybean bids were slightly higher after three consecutive days of lower trends. Midwest weather forecasts are calling for hot, dry con- ditions next week which could hurt the potential record crop yields. Soy- bean meal bids were firmer on expanding livestock numbers and indications of possible increases in hog herds. Corn bids showed slight weakness in areas due to poor export sales this week and continued good crop rating conditions.

The OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC THIS WEEK WITH

AUGUST 7-13, 2000

MOON RUNS LOW, AUGUST 12.

HALE AT YALE

A statue of Nathan Hale went up at the Yale campus in New Haven, Conn., on August 8, 1936. Constructed to honor the man hanged for spying on the British, the statue also commemorates Hale's graduation, with honors, from Yale in 1773. After graduation, Hale went on to teach, first in East Haddam, then in New London. In the Revolutionary War, he fought alongside five of his brothers at Lexington and Concord. When he was caught by British General William Howe's troops, in September 1776, Hale was disguised as a Dutch schoolmaster. His espionage papers—and perhaps a cousin, a British sympathizer—gave him away. His teaching career was ended.

I only regret that I have but one life to lose for my country.

–Nathan Hale

TIP OF THE WEEK

☞ Add a teaspoonful or two of lemon juice to the boiling water to keep potatoes white.

2 tablespoons ketchup
1 tablespoon honey
1 tablespoon soy sauce

Rinse mushrooms and pat dry, then cut off and chop the stems. Mix garlic, thyme, rosemary, and olive oil and drizzle this over the caps. Combine remaining ingredients with chopped stems in a small saucepan. Simmer for 5 minutes. Baste caps with sauce, and grill (or broil) for 2 to 3 minutes per side. OPINION

See You At Empire Days

Empire Farm Days are scheduled for this week. Here is an opportunity for Northeast farmers to experience the latest in agricultural technology.

The show that runs from Aug. 8-10 is the 67th such annual event and again will be conducted at the Rodman Lott and Son Farm in Seneca Falls, N.Y. The 300-plus acre site will host 600 exhibitors, and 75,000 visitors are expected to attend.

As far back as 1931 there has been an agricultural show sponsored by the Empire State Potato growers especially for New York State farmers. But since then, the event has undergone many changes, including the regional scope of the event. However, the purpose has remained the same — to bring the farmer and agribusiness community together in one place.

Field demonstrations are a major part of the show. Farmers get a chance to see various makes and models of farm equipment and tractors all working side by side in one field. Many other demonstrations and educational events are part of the show.

Again this year, the dairy profit seminars are a major feature, and parlor tours have been added. If you are a farmer or have interest in the newest farm applications and techniques, you will want to make the trip to Empire Farm Days this week. We hope to see you there.

Now Is The Time

To Prevent Field Fires

Field fires cause more than $20 million in equipment loses each year, not to mention crop loses resulting from downtime and personal injury.

Generally, not only does equipment become part of the loss in a field fire, it is often the source of the fire. In most cases this is because of carelessness on the part of the operator.

Equipment is designed and engineered to protect against being the source of a fire. However, sparks from a faulty exhaust system, as well as grease or oil buildup around the engine, can greatly increase the chance of a fire.

Be prepared for a fire. Equip every tractor, hay baler, and self-propelled machine with a fully charged 10-pound ABC dry chemical extinguisher.

Two extinguishers are better: one in the cab and one that can be reached from the ground. Inspect your extinguishers regularly, checking the pressure gauge for a full charge. Even during a brief discharge, the dry chemical particles will create a small gap in the internal seal of the extinguisher. Keep a cell phone or two-way radio with each powered field implement.

To Follow These Tips

Following are some safety tips to help prevent a fire in the field.

Keep equipment clean. Remove dust, plant debris, and trash from each piece of equipment daily or more often if conditions warrant.

Pay special attention to the engine and engine compartment. About 75 percent of all equipment fires start in this area. If you notice any leaking fuel or oil hoses, fittings or metal lines, replace or repair them immediately.

Equipment fires can be caused by several heat sources. The most common is exhaust system surfaces that contact any flammable material. Make sure your exhaust system, including the manifold, muffler, and turbocharger are in good condition and free of leaks. Clean up spilled fuel and oil.

To Perform Routine Maintenance

Pay close attention to your machine operator's manual. Be sure to follow all instructions and schedules for lubrication and routine maintenance.

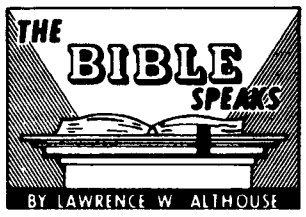
Perform routine maintenance to keep machines and hay tools in top working condition and to reduce friction among moving components.

A badly worn bearing can glow red hot. Any rubber belt subjected to intense heat from a worn part can burst into flames.

Inspect machines regularly for worn or damaged electrical components and wiring. You should replace any worn or malfunctioning electric components with parts from your dealer.

If your machine is blowing fuses or has a circuit that intermittently cuts out, find and repair the cause. Arcing electrical wires generate extremely high temperatures.

Feather Prof.'s Footnote: "You can recover from a financial loss, but you cannot recover from a loss of reputation."



THE MYSTERY OF LIFE

Background Scripture:
Colossians 1.
Devotional Reading:
John 1:1-5, 9-18.

When I was a high school sophomore, I tried out for the Reading Civic Opera Company (in Reading, Pa.) and became the youngest member at that time. We didn't actually do operas, but light operas — "The New Moon," "Naughty Marietta," "The Mikado."

One of my favorite songs was by Victor Herbert and Rida Johnson Young, entitled "Ah! Sweet Mystery of Life!" I was intrigued by the thought that there was a "mystery" about life and these composers thought they had found it:

Ah! Sweet mystery of life at last I've found thee,

Ah! I know at last the secret of it all;

For 'tis love, and love alone, the world is seeking,

And 'tis love and love alone that can repay!

'Tis the answer, 'tis the end and all of living,

For it is love alone that rules for aye!

— (Witmark & Sons, 1910)

But by the time I became a young man, I no longer wondered about the "mystery" of life. I lived as if there was no mystery because I thought I knew what I was doing and where I was headed.

I worked on the unspoken assumption that if I thought, worked, and prayed hard enough, long enough and intensely enough, there wasn't any problem I couldn't face.

Eventually, however, after some hard bumps along the way, I began to wonder once more about the mystery or mysteries of life. Today, periodically, I ask myself of life, "What's this all about? What am I all about?"

Joining The Pieces

Inevitably I return to the conviction that answer to the "mystery" of life is in Jesus Christ.

As Paul says in Colossians, "... in him all things hold together" (1:17). There are so many bits and pieces in life that it seems there is no way we can make sense of them. But in Christ, I have found for myself, "in him all things hold together." He puts the pieces together and makes of them, if not something I can comprehend, at least something I can apprehend.

I may not be able to understand how all of life hangs together, but I can at least experience that reality in him.

Through most of my life I have been a rationalist, in that I believed all the questions about God could be arranged in some kind of order if I could only approach the job with enough clear thought and reason. But, today, after seven decades of life, I am realizing that I will never be able to put these questions, these gaps in our knowledge of God, in an order that will satisfy others or even myself.

It is an impossible job to analyze and systematize God. I should have known that from the beginning, for how can you put the infinite into some kind of finite system or picture? Answer? You can't!

The Possible Impossibility

That is where I need Jesus Christ, for in him this impossible task becomes possible to the extent that human beings can grasp it.

"He is the image of the invisible God ... For in him all the fullness was pleased to dwell ..." (1:15,19). I can never define or explain God, but when I look at Jesus Christ, I can see enough, hear enough, and understand enough of what the invisible God is in his essence.

Paul speaks of the "mystery hidden for ages and generations, but now made manifest to his saints" (1:26). In Jesus Christ I can see all of the nature of God that I can grasp and in him and his life I can see all that I can appropriate of his purpose for Christ and me: "For in him all the fullness of God was pleased to dwell, and through him to reconcile to himself all things ... making peace by the blood of his cross" (1:20). In Christ the mystery of life is no longer a mystery.

Red And White Banquet Held In Bedford

Linda Williams

BEDFORD (Bedford Co.)- National headquarters for the 2000 Red and White Convention Show/ Sale held July 27 through 29, was the Best Western Hotel with the show and sale being held at the Bedford Fairgrounds.

Premier breeder and exhibitor was announced as the Rob Morrill family from Penawok, New Hampshire. " We have a herd of 300 Holstein with 30 true Red and White and a lot of red factor," says Morrill. The Morrills have a life time average production of 143,897; 5879 fat; and 4470, protein. They have been four generations on the farm.

Daughter, Kimberly, took a Junior Showmanship award back to New Hampshire. Also taking a showmanship award was Jamie Merkle of Everett.

The Albrecht Memorial Award went to Elmer Carpenter of 624 Raystown Road in Everett. A lovable, but, according to those who know him well, cantankerous 90, Elmer has a prestigious history with the Red and White Association.

He served as a director from 1967 until 1970 and as the first editor of The Red Bloodlines. His herd at Pineview Farm in the 60's was developed from various breeds which were blended together, often with 3 to 6 breeds combined.

A number of red Holsteins were in the herd. It was among the top herds for fat in Pennsylvania.

Elmer always maintained an adversarial attitude to "pure-bred" Holstein breeding the Holstein Association. Ever the champion of the underdog, he opposed the introduction of the Holstein gradeup program adopted in the late 60's, casting the lone "no" vote. His vision

NEED HIGH QUALITY FORAGE?

NO-TILL GREEN SPIRIT RYEGRASS INTO THOSE TIRED OLD ALFALFA FIELDS!

Has higher quality than triticale or wheat if cut before boot stage.
Is actually a better feed than alfalfa. Has more digestible fiber and sugars.
Does not head out until approximately May 12. Cut your alfalfa & GREEN SPIRIT first week of May and the GREEN SPIRIT will be ready again 3 weeks later. Yes, that's 2 cuttings and still time to plant corn.
So if you have moisture in the ground, no-till GREEN SPIRIT into your worn out alfalfa fields after 3rd cutting and still get a good cutting or two this fall, and lots of tonnage next spring.

Glickman Awards $600,000 For Marketing

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Agriculture Secretary Dan Glickman recently awarded 14 matching grants totaling $600,000 to support agriculture market research and demonstration projects.

The grants, provided under the Federal-State Marketing Improvement Program, will be used to improve marketing systems for food and agricultural products or to identify new market opportunities for farm products.

"The proposals selected today reflect the administration's continuing commitment to help small farms thrive. These research and development projects will help small farmers and ranchers find new, innovative marketing approaches that can help them connect with more consumers. Finding alternatives to traditional retail systems strengthens the chances for small-scale producers to survive in markets that are growing increasingly concentrated and competitive," Glickman said.

USDA awarded the following grants:

• Arizona — A $42,000 grant to the Arizona Department of Agriculture, in cooperation with Arizona State University, for an evaluation of the tourism industry as an alternative marketing channel for Arizona agricultural products.

• Indiana — A $78,000 grant to Purdue University to assist in developing a unique production and marketing system to enhance the profitability and sustainability of small to midsize beef producers and processors in the Eastern Corn Belt region.

• Iowa — A $55,000 grant to the Iowa Department of Agriculture and Land Stewardship to expand local food systems through direct marketing to Iowa institutions.

• Kansas — A $55,000 grant to Kansas State University, in cooperation with the Kansas Department of Commerce and Housing, to identify market opportunities for new varieties of hard white wheat and to assess alternative business structures for producers.

• Massachusetts — A $55,000 grant to the Massachusetts Department of Food and Agriculture, in concert with Connecticut, Vermont, and New York, to develop innovative marketing approaches for small-farm livestock producers in the Northeast.

• Michigan — A $40,000 grant to the Michigan Department of Agriculture for a cooperative project with Michigan State University and the Midwest Nut Producers Council to develop product quality criteria for marketing Midwest-grown edible chestnuts.

• Missouri — A $27,500 grant to the Missouri Department of Agriculture, in cooperation with University of Missouri Outreach and Extension, to increase direct market access and communication by connecting producers and consumers.

• Montana — A $48,000 grant to the Montana Department of Agriculture, with Montana State University and others, to assess market opportunities and strategic directions for specialty herbs and essential oils crops in western Montana.

• North Carolina — A $20,000 grant to the North Carolina Department of Agriculture to help evaluate the competitive position of the Fraser Fir Christmas tree industry and formulate a marketing

Salers Junior Show Draws International Audience

Salers enthusiasts from around the world gathered for one of the largest Salers shows in the United States. The 2000 Junior National Salers Show was held in conjunction with the International Salers Federation (ISF) Conference. The show and conference were the premier Salers event of the year, commemorating the American Salers Association (ASA's) 25th Anniversary.

American Salers Junior Association (ASJA) members and their families converged on Montana for the event, "Salers 2000 and Beyond," July 9-12, that took place at the Central Montana Fairgrounds in Lewistown. There were at least fifty foreign guests in attendance, representing France, New Zealand, Canada and the United Kingdom.

The ASA, ASJA, and the Montana-Wyoming Salers Association sponsored and hosted this Salers extravaganza. The Salers Association of Canada also supported the event. More than 80 junior Salers breeders from 16 states attended the exhibition where 150 head of Salers cattle were displayed. Several Canadian juniors participated in the festivities as well.

During the four-day event, participants competed in contests and cattle competitions highlighted by the national and steer show. Dave Dal Porto, Brentwood, Calif., evaluated the cattle as the judge for all Salers classes including steers, commercial heifers, cow-calf pairs, bull calves and females.

Jason Conatser, Jamestown, Tenn., topped the heifer show with his Grand Champion Salers female, GGT P Blk Twilite, a November 1998 daughter of GGT Pld Blk Trifecta. Twilite was also named the Champion Senior Heifer.

was vindicated 30 years later when the directors voted to eliminate the grade-up program.

An avid oil painter, he has contributed to the association funds through his donations of oil paintings, many of which hang in red breeders homes today as well as in the Red & White office in Breezewood. One of his paintings, auctioned just before the sale on Saturday, sold for $1200 and was purchased by Leon & Phyllis Miller of St. Johns, Michigan. The Albert Memorial Award was instituted in 1989 following the death of Don Albert. Recipients are recognized for exceptional service and support of the Association and Red & Whites.

Steve Rhodes of Harrisonburg, Virginia was the recipient of the J.P. "Doc: Estranger Young Breeder Award.

The Larry Moore Master Breeder Award went to Dan Burket of East Freedom.

A "fun auction" which followed the awards brought in $3200.

The convention included a tour of the national office at Crystal Springs and also of the Burket Falls Farm.

Joan Carpenter, chairman of the event, said,"We were very pleased with the success of the show, sale and banquet. It was the largest crowd ever for the banquet and I think of the largest crowds to attend a sale. It makes all of the hard work worthwhile."

Northeast District Jersey Show Set For Aug. 15

LIBERTY — Tuesday, Aug. 15 is the date for the Northeast District Jersey Show. The Troy Fairgrounds will be the site of this year's show that will be judged by William Taylor, of Marcellus, N.Y. The show will begin at 9:30 a.m.

All typical calf and cow classes as well as a class for senior yearlings in milk will be staged including a production class for animals who have produced 100,000 pounds of milk or 4,000 pounds of fat. A premier exhibitor and premier breeder for the show will also be named. Once again, the Noble family will present a premier performance award in memory of Tommy G. Noble. The award will be given at the end of the show and will be based 50 percent on milk production and 50 percent on class placing.

To be eligible for the premier performance award, please submit the animal's most recent 305-day lactation summary with the entry forms. Fees of $5 per youth entry and $7 per adult entry should accompany all submissions. Please include the animal's name, registration number, birth date, sire, dam, owner's name and breeder's name on a piece of plain paper and send it to Paul Moyer, RR 1, Box 88A, Roaring Branch, PA 17765. The entry deadline is Aug. 8, 2000. Entries postmarked after that date will be subject to a $15 per head late fee.

Animals may enter the fairgrounds Monday, Aug. 14. On that evening, a pizza party for exhibitors will be held with a brief meeting to follow.

To be admitted to the show, animals must be free from signs of clinical illness or contagious or infectious diseases and must be presented with an official health certificate upon entering the fairgrounds. Vaccinations required include IBR, PI3 and BVD. Animals that have not been vaccinated against BVD during the previous 12 months must receive one dose of modified live virus vaccine given at least 15 days and not more than 180 days before the show or two doses of killed vaccine two to four weeks apart with the last dose given at least 15 days and not more than 180 days before the show. Animals that have been vaccinated for BVD within the past 12 months must receive a single injection of modified live virus or killed vaccine not less than 15 days prior to the show. Vaccination against rabies is highly recommended.

"Through the years, the quality of the Jersey show has been steadily increasing," says chairman Paul Moyer, "Let's make this year's show the best ever!"

Enhancing Dairy Farming's Image

ROSEMONT, Ill. — Today's consumers seem to be in love with cows. From the "Cows on Parade" statues displayed this summer on the sidewalks of New York to the myriad Holstein-patterned items featured in gift shops everywhere, the image of the dairy cow has become strongly imbedded in American culture.

But do U.S. consumers have the same positive feeling about dairy producers and the farms where those cows reside?

According to recent survey results, the answer appears to be "yes," with the caution that consumers remain largely uninformed about dairy farms. A recent dairy checkoff-sponsored Roper Starch Worldwide survey of 500 consumers nationwide indicates that 74 percent of 500 consumers surveyed said dairy farmers make a significant contribution to society. Only teachers (89 percent) and doctors (88 percent) ranked higher on the list.

The dairy industry's challenge is to make sure this current positive image remains, because the public image of dairy farming can make a long-term difference in the ability of U.S. dairy producers to sell their product, according to Linda Eatherton, vice president of public and industry relations for Dairy Management Inc. (DMI), which manages the national dairy checkoff on behalf of America's dairy farmers.

"Consumers who view dairy producers as good caretakers of their animals and the environment are likely to have fewer concerns about the wholesomeness of the milk they drink," Eatherton said.

This is one reason why DMI and National Milk Producers Federation have responded to a request by dairy producer leadership to co-sponsor an industry-wide Reputation Management program.

While public opinion overall toward dairy farming remains positive, some attitudes give rise to concern. Contrary to reality, most consumers (51 percent) in the same Roper Starch Worldwide survey expressed belief that the majority of dairy farms are owned not by farmers and their families, but corporations.

"This indicates that while consumers show a high regard for dairy producers, they remain uninformed about the real world of dairy farming," said Glen Schroeder, a Minnesota dairy producer who is chairman of the joint DMI committee that oversees checkoff communications programs on the image of dairy farming. "As more consumers become even farther removed from dairy farms, misperceptions about dairying are likely to intensify."

The Reputation Management program will help bridge this gap by telling consumers about producers' use of responsible herd health practices, along with the industry's environmental stewardship, high product safety standards and top-quality dairy products, Schroeder added.

To build on the current trust bank dairy producers now have and to help protect against a possible slippage in public opinion, the Reputation Management program reinforces public confidence that dairy producers are running their businesses in a responsible manner. The program includes educating consumer media about dairy farming and initiating public education campaigns to correct consumer misperceptions about the dairy industry, while spotlighting the industry's best management practices.

"The success of this program lies in the ability of the entire industry to work together to put its best face forward to the public," Schroeder said. "We dairy producers can help ourselves and the entire industry by maintaining high standards on environmental stewardship, animal care and product safety to help us put our farms and our products in the best light for consumers."

The FH Syndrome

Virginia A. Ishler
PSU Program Assit.
Dairy & Animal Science

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — The fat heifer syndrome is a prevalent condition observed out in the field. As herds undergo expansion, it appears that the situation is becoming worse. There are several reasons for this. The first is that older heifers are spending the majority of their time in a freestall environment. They obtain minimal exercise by going to and from the feed bunk.

The second reason is that academia and industry have promoted harvesting good to excellent quality forages so that low quality forages are difficult to obtain for many herds. Even when heifers do receive lower quality forages in a well-balanced ration, it still is a challenge to keep heifers from gaining too much condition in confined housing.

The ramification from raising fat heifers is that they usually perform poorly after calving. They are candidates for going off feed, getting a displaced abomasum, and in some cases being culled for poor performance. With the costs invested in raising heifers, this is a terrible waste of resources.

In order to avoid the fat heifer syndrome, there are few management modifications to consider. Pasture is one of the best ways to of getting animals off concrete and promoting exercise. If pasture ground is a limiting factor on the home farm, then contracting heifers to a heifer grower with the available pasture could be an option.

Regardless of who is growing the heifers, they need to be observed on a regular basis. It is necessary to ensure there is adequate pasture and water, and that no injuries have occurred. Proper practices should be followed related to control internal and external parasites.

Abundant pasture that is kept young and actively growing may provide most of the nutrients needed by heifers more than nine months old. Pastured heifers should be provided with a minimum of free-choice trace mineral salt. In the hot dry periods of summer if adequate rainfall has not been forthcoming for pasture regrowth, then supplementing heifers with grain or a total mixed ration is recommended.

The body condition scores of heifers should be monitored to avoid under- or over-conditioned animals. Breeding age heifers should have a body condition score near a 3.0 to 3.25 (scale one to five where one is thin and five is fat). A body condition score of 3.5 to 3.7 are considered ideal for heifers calving at 22 to 24 months of age. If older heifers lose too much weight and body condition on pasture, this can be as detrimental on performance as being over-conditioned.

If heifers cannot be placed on pasture, there are some practices to consider, which will minimize over-conditioning. Heifers should not be fed corn silage or any good to excellent quality haycrop forage free choice. Producers should feed heifers according to the nutritionist's recommendations for dry matter intake, protein, energy, minerals, and vitamins. Feeding some low protein and energy hay to older heifers is desirable. Avoid feeding excessive amounts of concentrates.

Heifers are a very important resource for the dairy producer. The time, money, and labor invested in raising them so they calve at 22 to 24 months is at least a minimum of $1,000.00 per animal. Avoiding the FH syndrome allows animals to perform to their genetic potential and alleviates the headache involved in treating metabolic problems at calving.

Gelbvieh Alliance Hits 200,000 Head Mark

The Gelbvieh Alliance reached another milestone in July, processing a total of more than 200,000 cattle through its innovative grid marketing program with ConAgra. More than 26,000 cattle were processed in the first half of 2000, the second highest mid-year volume in the Alliance's five-year history. June 2000 set an all-time monthly record of 9,106 cattle.

Participation in the Gelbvieh Alliance is easy, flexible and profitable. Simply schedule your cattle directly with ConAgra by Monday noon of the week before the cattle are harvested. No minimum percent Gelbvieh is required. Then complete the American Gelbvieh Association's (AGA) brief scheduling confirmation form. ConAgra will send your proceeds check promptly, with all AGA and ConAgra fees deducted up front. If you choose to provide feedlot closeout information, 25 percent of the AGA fees will be refunded. The AGA will send your results, including tag transfers and/or complete carcass data if requested, within 24 hours of receiving the data from ConAgra. Your results can be mailed, faxed or emailed.

Over the past five years, producers have enjoyed overall average live premiums of $9.84, with the top 25 percent of pens netting an impressive $35.03 per head.

4-H Skillathon Aug. 17 At Ag Progress

ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — Ag Progress Days is also the site of the 4-H Equine Skillathon, here Aug. 17.

All 2000 Pennsylvania 4- H horse club members are invited to compete.

Components of the skillathon are:

- Division 1, horseless, new for 2000. Included are identification stations, a written test, and the contestant must judge one conformation halter class.
- Division 2, with horse. This includes identification stations, a written test, and a showmanship contest.

For the identification stations, subjects may include topics from project books. The written test includes general knowledge of horses, horse-riding ability, and related topics. In the showmanship contest, participants will show their 4-H project horses and be judged according to the current state 4-H horse show rulebook.

For judging, contestants will rank a class of four horses according to ideal conformation standards for the class.

There are three age categories for each division (4-H age as of Jan. 1, 2000): 8-11 years old, 12-14 years old, and 15-18 years old.

Contestants must be enrolled in a Pennsylvania 4-H horse or horseless project. Participants must use their current 4-H project horses if competing in the with-horse division. Horses must have verification of current negative EIA status (within one year) and rabies vaccination for 2000. These must be presented at registration.

BUILDING - NEW or REMODELING

New Cluster Free Stalls

- Suspended from the barn rafters by free swinging chains to avoid cow entanglement.
- Free swinging feature eliminates injury to cows and also any damage to the stalls.
- Decreases the occurance of cow bruises enhancing milk production capabilities.
- Powder coated with 20 year rust thru guarantee.
- Fully adjustable neck rail.
- Fully adjustable brisket rail.
- Available up to a 4 bed cluster.
- Patented.

Cluster Free Stalls are easily installed in new or remodeled barns. The free stalls "hanging" from barn rafters provide many advantages to help keep cows safe and healthy. By using suspended free stalls, cows are less likely to obtain bruises. Thus all their energy can be concentrated towards increased milk production. The design of the stall allows it to swing up, down or back out of the way of the cow. Because they swing freely, the stalls can withstand the force of animal contact. And because they are powder coated, they require little maintenance.

USDA Announces Peach Purchase

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The USDA recently announced that it will purchase approximately 36 million pounds of canned clingstone peach products to assist struggling growers.

"These are challenging times for peach growers, along with many other farmers and ranchers, and a considerable surplus of product has added to their financial strain," said Deputy Secretary Richard E. Rominger. "USDA has a long tradition of helping to ease such hardships by buying critically high surplus commodities and redistributing them through our federal nutrition programs."

The peach products will be donated to Needy Families, Child Nutrition, and other related domestic food assistance programs. The planned purchase will be made from offers that must be submitted on a delivered to destination basis. Deliveries will be made during the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1, 2000 and ending Sept. 30, 2001.

The purchase is in addition to 9.1 million pounds of canned peaches bought to date in fiscal year 2000. It follows Vice President Gore's July 21 announcement of a major purchase of pears. USDA is also planning to purchase about 37 million pounds of canned peach products in the coming weeks in addition to today's announcement.

"This assistance helps to stabilize prices in agricultural commodity markets by balancing supply and demand, and provides economical and healthy food for school children, the elderly, needy families, and the homeless," Rominger said.

Lebanon Fair's Goat Show Attracts Quality Kids

MICHELLE RANCK
Lancaster Farming Staff

North Cornwall (Lebanon Co.) — 4-H'ers learned a few tips about keeping kids in line during the Lebanon Fair's second 4-H market goat show this week.

Exhibitors participated in fitting, showmanship, and market goat classes. In the fitting classes Dr. Robert Herr, who judged the event, checked the ears, underneath the hind flank, hooves, tail, and belly for trimming accuracy and cleanliness of the animal.

The showmanship classes tested the patience and skill of the exhibitors as many of the goats danced and fidgeted in the show ring. However the skills of the handler, rather than the animal on the leash, decided class placings.

"The showmanship class is one of the finest classes to win. You're on your own, you can't depend on the animal," said Herr.

Herr not only checked to see how well the owner had prepared the animal but asked the young exhibitors several questions.

"If you've spent a lot of time working with your animal you should have a name for it," said Herr, who not only asked the name of the animal but nomenclature for the goat. He also asked the participants the breed name of their goat.

Weight class judging criteria included conformation, balance, thickness and finish of the animal.

"Eighty percent of the value of a meat goat is from the last rib back," said Herr, who looked for length in the winners.

The future of the meat goat business is bright, says Herr, who commended the students for investing in such a promising enterprise.

According to Herr the ethnic market, the primary outlet for goat meat, is growing every day.

"Eight thousand people a month come into the U.S. that consider sheep and goat their primary source of meat," said Herr.

Color may have played a hand in the selection of goats to take into the ring. To grand champion winner Travis Dresch, the black coat of "Cyrus," along with the sturdy build of the goat, helped the animal stand out from the family's 35 goats.

To Katie Eckert, "Andy's" copper red color plus his proven family background helped make the goat her choice out of her farm's 20 goats.

Strengthening The Farm Relationship With The Local Municipality

The relationship between today's farming community and its local township seems to be far greater in importance than it has ever been in Lancaster County. As a farm operation continues to grow it may require more of an advanced farm or non-traditional farm approach to remain profitable, which may raise some questions, concerns or misunderstandings with the local township officials. This is one of the reasons why The Lancaster Chamber of Commerce & Industry's Agriculture Committee recently held an event for township officials and their families called Agricultural Growth in the New Millenium. The evening provided a fresh look at the changing family farm and how it affects the local municipality.

The Agriculture Committee presented an informative one-hour seminar for township officials on the ag industry in Lancaster County. The first part of the seminar covered a resource list that included the many local, state and federal organizations in the ag industry which are available to assist them when faced with a question or problem. An update on the farming community was given with a look at the past, present and the future direction that agriculture is headed. Environmentally responsible farm operations were a key part of the evening's discussion, along with their commitment to nutrient management and conservation plans.

The seminar provided the township officials information on advanced and non-traditional farms and their successful fit in a township. It was pointed out that advanced farms are often better managed, more efficient and are more environmentally responsible, but the ag-industry has done a poor job in communicating these benefits to the non-farm community. This has led to some misunderstandings and misperceptions citizens have expressed to their local township when a new or expanding farm operation is presented for approval. The seminar helped to provide township officials with the necessary information needed to help answer these questions. It also reviewed some ways township officials can help keep farming profitable in their townships. The last component of the seminar included a panel discussion with four different township supervisors, which was very informative and led to some great questions from the audience.

Some other fun attractions for the more than 230 in attendance included a free ride on the Strasburg Railroad, an in depth tour of Cherry-Crest Farm's modern dairy and poultry operation, a corn maze exploration and a barbecue supper. The Lancaster Conservation District provided agricultural-based entertainment for the family during the township officials' seminar.

While this event was only a first step in strengthening the relationship between the ag industry and the local township, it shows promise in continuing communication between the two groups. Through providing opportunities for township officials to learn more about farming, they will become better prepared when faced with questions from the non-farm public. With some of the recently passed regional planning legislation, now may be the time to establish a regularly scheduled forum for township officials, farmers, ag industry leaders and the general public to meet and discuss current issues and questions.

For more information on this Township Agri-Education event, please send your questions or comments to Brent Landis at The Lancaster Chamber at blandis@lcci.com or 717-397-3531.

Forward Pilot Program To Begin

The final rule authorizing implementation of the Dairy Forward Pricing Program has been approved, with a starting date of July 19, 2000. The program will exempt participating handlers regulated under a federal milk order from paying producers and cooperative associations the minimum federal order price(s) for that portion of their non-Class I milk that is under a forward contract. The pilot program will be in effect for milk marketed August 1, 2000 through December 31, 2004.

Operation of Program

The program is a voluntary program that allows dairy farmers and handlers to enter into a forward contract whereby they mutually agree to terms by which the handler buys raw milk and the dairy farmer is paid. The agreed upon payment rate and terms (e.g. payment on milk components or not) may or may not have any relation to the minimum prices of the federal order to which the producer and handler are associated.

By entering into a forward contract under this program, a dairy farmer gives up the right to receive the minimum federal order prices for the amount of their milk under contract. Dairy farmers entering into a forward contract should understand all of the terms of the contract, including how their milk will be priced, the length of the contract, and any charges or deductions that will be made.

If a formula will be used to price a producer's milk, the producer should understand how the formula works and what factors affect its movement. Producers should understand what will happen if they cannot fulfill the terms of the contract. They also should understand what remedies are available if the process defaults on the contract.

Producer Participation

To participate in the program, the handler to which a dairy farmer delivers milk must be willing to offer the producer a forward contract. In addition, the handler must have some non-Class I used of milk (e.g. butter, powder, cheese, ice cream, etc.) to cover the quantity of milk under forward contract.

A participating handler must provide a producer with a disclosure statement along with the agreed upon forward contract. Both documents will be forwarded by the handler to the appropriate market administrator office.

Market Administrator Involvement

Market administrators are limited to reviewing completed forward contracts to be certain that they are in compliance with the rules governing the pilot program. Market administrator staff will ensure that the contract is signed by both parties and will make certain that a signed disclosure statement is attached to each contract entered into by a dairy farmer under the pilot program.

Additional information about the program is available from any market administrator office, or can be downloaded from USDA's AMS website at www.ams.usda.gov/dairy.

Mountain Market Goat Club has grown in participation since last year. The club meets twice a month from February through June.

"We learn the names of body parts, how to trim hooves, we watch fair videotapes, we learn how to fit for the fair, and we spend a lot of time going over worming and feeding," said Dresch.

Dr. Herr is very comfortable in the show ring, as he judges 10-15 market goat shows a year, a schedule he has kept up for many years. Besides order buying goats, Herr raises them on his "Nix Besser" farm.

Penn State Ag College Envisions Growth, Commitment To Citizens

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Well into its second hundred years of educating students and serving Pennsylvania agriculture, Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences will focus on meeting the ever-changing demands of the food and fiber system by continuing its land grant mission of integrating teaching, research and extension and outreach, Dean Robert Steele told the University's Board of Trustees recently.

"As a result of feedback from alumni and the employers who hire our students, the college is engaged in an extensive curricular reorganization that has placed increased emphasis on student internships and gaining international experience in a global economy. We will continue to explore imaginative ways for our students to gain this important experience," Steele told the board.

The mission for the College in the 21st century, Steele said, is building excellence in teaching, research and extension so that graduates in agricultural sciences can thrive in a world that reaches well beyond the farm gate and Pennsylvania into a teeming global and virtual economy.

Steele said the ongoing restructuring of Penn State Cooperative Extension has been an unqualified success. Two state program leaders have been hired and a candidate search for a third is under way. A new, streamlined organizational structure is in place and many new extension agents and faculty have been hired to better serve the citizens of the commonwealth. The College also has hired a number of new research and teaching faculty.

The College of Agricultural Sciences maintains an aggressive campaign to attract top-quality students and faculty to our programs. Several modern, state-of-the-art facilities are planned in the next few years, including new buildings for the food science department and the School of Forest Resources.

In addition to its 18 majors, the college coordinates countless special programs, research centers and intercollege projects.

Steele told the board that the College will continue to promote its unique educational mission by finding fresh and attractive methods to attract the best and the brightest of the next one hundred years.

"Many, if not most, 18- and 20-year-olds do not realize the tremendous career opportunities that are available within the food system — jobs such as turf manager for a world-class golf course, to consulting forester, to quality control technician for a candy manufacturer, to crop consultant, and many others," Steele said. "Getting that message out remains one of our highest priorities."

What's Cropping Up At New Morning Farm?

HUSTONTOWN (Portion of Huntingdon Co.) — Jim and Moie Kimball Crawford grow a lot of different things on their Huntingdon County farm.

One of their most successful crops must be the innovative, can-do attitude which has enabled them to prosper at small-scale vegetable farming.

"We're a very diversified, direct-marketing vegetable farm," Jim told a crowd of about 65 during a recent Pennsylvania Association for Sustainable Agriculture (PASA)-sponsored field day at New Morning Farm.

"There are very few vegetable farmers in this area. But we felt that we wanted to farm on a small scale, and we knew we wanted to grow vegetables. We're able to farm the way we want to farm, and we have a direct relationship with consumers."

Throughout the field and building tours, the Crawfords detailed the techniques and equipment, from a custom-designed hydrostatic harvesting wagon to the practice of providing customers with as much farm-based information as possible, which have worked for them in the field and at the marketplace.

"The thing that was always our biggest problem is that there were no models," Crawford said. "We just weren't sure, so we were always trying things."

The results, after 28 years of organic farming, are systems and equipment that are "low-tech, but carefully chosen low-tech."

Things may seem very simple, but they are "appropriate for us and our scale," he said.

One of the most deceptively simple pieces of equipment on New Morning Farm is the harvesting wagon. Powered by a 1950s'-era Tuff-Built hydrostatic tractor, the wagon sports a conveyer belt created from an aluminum ladder.

As the clutchless Tuff-Built creeps along through the rows of vegetables, harvesters pick the vegetables and place them on the conveyor. Workers on the wagon then put the produce directly into packing boxes. The wagon has a roof for shade, workers are close enough to talk to one another, and there is no need to drag boxes through the fields.

"Everything is right next to where you're working," Crawford said. "The main negative is maneuverability, so you have to plant accordingly."

The conveyer belt design can be adapted to fit any wagon. The only other consideration would then be propulsion. A creeper gear is a helpful feature, he noted.

For direct marketers like the Crawfords, efficient storage and packing of produce is critical.

"It's a material-handling problem when you get to a certain point," Crawford said. "Why this building is the way it is relates to the truck (used to haul produce to market)."

New Morning Farm's custom-designed packing shed, with a concrete floor, loading dock, two coolers (each with a range of optimum holding temperatures for specific produce), and lots of storage space, has been a "big labor-saver," he said. The use of pallets and a pallet jack allowed him to load two trucks in 20 minutes.

Though having appropriate equipment and buildings is critical, so obviously is having a product to harvest. The Crawfords, with the help of a couple of year-round employees, interns, apprentices, and seasonal workers, plant about 25 acres into about 40 different crops which are typically harvested from May through December. A variety of season-extension methods are used, including staggered plantings. Beans, for example, are planted 10 or 12 times.

"That gives us the harvest we want for our market," Crawford said.

They start all their own seeds, with the exception of strawberries. They don't use a transplanter, but, as Crawford said, 'we've gotten really good at doing it by hand."

A number of different weed control devices are used, including "plenty of hoes," he said. Botanical pest control such as Bt keeps bugs at bay. Soil fertility is enhanced with mushroom soil, chicken manure, and a little lime.

So it's planted, it's harvested, it's packed, and stored.

Then what? "After we grow this stuff we have to sell it all," said Moie.

There is more to that than just hauling vegetables to the nearest street corner. New Morning Farm sells at several growers-only and other markets, and has been going to the same Washington, D.C.-area market for 27 years.

As with the other farm equipment, the technology for the sales end of things is very basic. But finding what works best in the marketplace has also been a series of trial and error.

Sometimes it is necessary to pay more to get a product that suits your needs, Moie noted. The purchase of a high-end electronic scale and calculator, for instance, significantly reduced human error in figuring the sale price. Stackable tables with adjustable legs have been a boon as well.

Through it all, the satisfaction of selling directly to consumers, of having a "personal connection" with the people who eat the food they've grown, and of farming organically and sustainably, are all what keeps things growing on New Morning Farm.

Cattle Associations Sponsor Field Day In Western Pennsylvania

AMITY (Washington Co.) — Recently over 300 people from seven states attended the co-sponsored cattlemen's field day at Blossom Valley Polled Hereford Farm. The Pennsylvania Cattlemen's Association, Washington County Cattlemen Association, Pennsylvania Polled Hereford Association, Mason-Dixon Polled Hereford Association, and the Grazing Forage/Lands Conservation Initiative sponsored the combined event.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan Dye, hosted the event and provided an excellent schedule of events and speakers.

Noted scientist and scholar, Dr. Temple Grandin of Colorado State University spoke on the virtues of proper cattle handling practices and challenged those present to employ practices more in line with animal behavior patterns. Cara Gerkin, head of the USDA meat grading division, and Paul Slayton, Executive Director of the Pennsylvania Beef Council, each addressed the crowd with issues and changes relating to the industry.

The Dye family, along with their farm managers, Mike and Jenny Neef, provided lunch, door prizes, contests, music by a local blue grass band, and a fun auction for the benefit of the junior associations.

Cattle Feeders Accept Challenge

MICHELLE RANCK
Farming Staff

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — If you can't judge a book by its cover, it seems you can't always judge a steer by its color... or size, or conformation. After participating in the "Fantasy Beef Quality Challenge," producers learned that cattle value is not a always a black-and-white issue.

About 100 cattle feeders and industry representatives learned valuable lessons about visual appraisal and its link to net return as they participated in the contest during the Cattle Feeder's Summer Workshop at Yoder's Restaurant in New Holland.

As part of an effort to educate and improve profitability in the cattle feeding industry, Penn State Cooperative Extension, the Pennsylvania Beef Council, and nine agribusiness companies sponsored the event.

The contest, developed at Texas A&M University, is part of an industry-wide push to zero in on beef quality. One of the goals of the program include determining participants' ability to judge growth potential, carcass quality and profitability of feeder calves. The lesson, then, was to illustrate the difficulty of accurately judging cattle visually.

As in many real life situations, participants had only visual appearance and initial feeder calf weight and value to select the top steers.

Participants warm up for the event by going through the Texas contest. After choosing five "winners" and five "losers" out of a field of 24 cattle, producers were able to see how each steer performed.

The next step, then, was to evaluate a field of seven random steers fed at Herr Angus in Nottingham and sold on grid pricing to Moyer Packing, where the cattle were evaluated and slaughtered.

Intervet representative John McFadden advised paying careful attention to frame size, thickness of muscling, and body condition in predicting net return on the animals.

"We'd like you to think about Quality and Yield grade, average daily gain, dressing percent, and ribeye area to determine profit that you would get from each steer," explained Hughes. "What we're going to ask you to do is predict net return, or what you think the cattle will make in return or loss."

Each steer was put up individually on the screen with the background information of the steer's weight upon purchase, the price paid for the animal, and the number of days on feed. The cattle were photographed halfway through the feeding program.

Net return was the dollar value of the steer minus the cost of finishing the steer. Final costs were estimated at $8 per head for processing, $40 to $50 yardage costs, and 88 cents to $1.05 per head per day for feed costs.

Each participant ranked what they believed to be the top five of the seven cattle. Only three participants picked the top steer as their number one rank. No one had an exact ranking, but John Bowman of B&R Cattle Company in Marietta had the first four ranked correctly.

According to an article by Don Hale, Joe Paschal, and Rob Maddock, project leaders from Texas A&M, the fantasy challenge illustrates that both good and bad cattle come in many different packages, so the outside physical characteristics will not always accurately predict the bottom line: net return.

Preconceived ideas about cattle types may prove to be a hindrance to picking an animal for performance, according to the authors. Also Quality grade, while an important component of the animal's end value, may not completely reflect the bottom-line dollar value.

In truth, value is a result of variables which include health, average daily gain, feed efficiency, initial feeder calf price, Quality and Yield Grades, and dressing percentages.

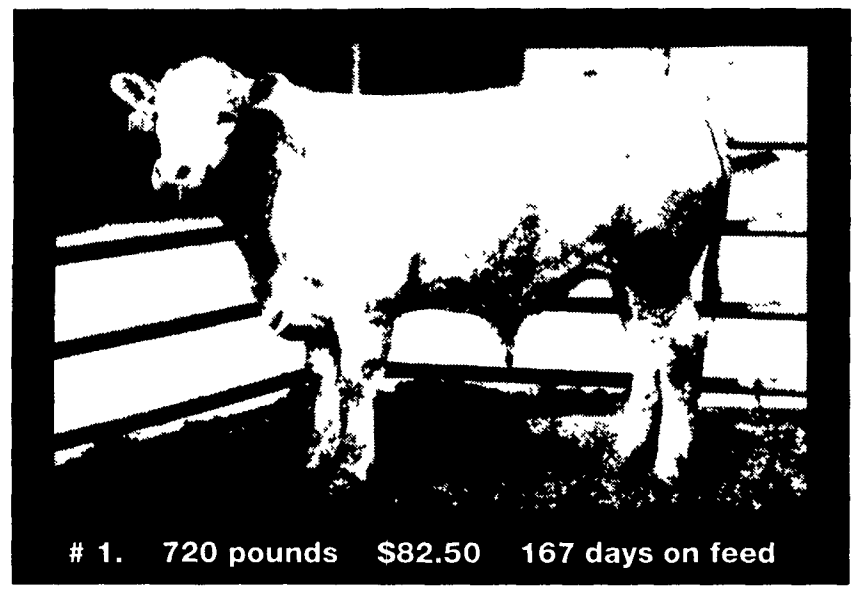
The authors hoped to show through the contest the difficulty of predicting value by visual estimation. Although this is an important key of cattle selection, cattle with known background and health history would improve feedlot profits.

The only way to get this background and history, however, is by individual animal identification. This management tool may prove to be key in the future of

(Turn to Page A37)

Here is your chance to try out your visual appraisal skills. After filling in the blanks with your estimation of how the cattle would perform, chose the top five animals and rank them, one being the best. The weight shown is the weight of the steer upon purchase. Steers numbered 2, 4, and 5 were on pasture an additional 98 days before entering the feedlot. The dollar value is the initial feeder calf value and the final number is the number of days the steer was in the feedyard.

The results may be surprising, as they were to many of the participants. A score card is included with the rest of the story.



1. 720 pounds $82.50 167 days on feed

2. 585 pounds $83 168 days on feed

the cattle business as the industry focuses in on quality and consistency of the product.

Blueprint For Success

Besides the contest to help industry representatives learn valuable lessons about quality cattle, other efforts are under way to improve the cattle feeding business in Pennsylvania.

Wendall Landis, director of Pennsylvania's Beef Quality Assurance Programs, opened the evening with a short summary of the "Blueprint for Success" program. Developed by a committee of representatives from the feedlot industry, the program is funded by both Penn State University and the Pennsylvania Beef Council.

The committee summarized animal and management factors to increase the quality and competitiveness of Pennsylvania fed cattle.

"I want to be out there working with you one-on-one, trying to see what your needs are and how they can be met," said Landis.

According to Landis, goals of the program are to sustain the beef industry, improve the value of the cattle, and increase the number of quality cattle fed and finished to meet packer and consumer demands. The program will help improve profitability and decrease discounts while improving consumer trust and satisfaction with beef.

"Basically I'm a communication link between the industry and the cattle feeder," said Landis. "It's an educational opportunity linking the cattle feeder and the Beef Council and Penn State resources so we can put things together and find you your answers," said Landis.

"We're not out policing, we're there to help and to offer opinions, so you don't have to be afraid to get me out. We're offering membership to a team, to tie the ends together to be profitable."

Landis also hopes to develop a database of Pennsylvania cattle feeders to establish statewide averages of feedlots across the commonwealth.

The program covers beef quality assurance practices, health, nutrition, implants, bunk management, facilities/ventilation, manure management, financial management, and marketing.

Nutrient Pollution Loads In Pennsylvania Watersheds

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — DEP has contracted the Environmental Resources Research Institute at the Penn State University to study and assess the extent of pollution from malfunctioning on-lot sewage systems, improper water well construction, non-agricultural fertilizer usage, stormwater runoff and atmospheric deposition.

The Penn State study found the following sources contribute to nutrient pollution of Pennsylvania's waters through nitrogen and phosphorus deposition:

Nitrogen- atmospheric deposition 48 percent; agriculture 39 percent; storm water eight percent; malfunctioning on-lot septic systems three percent; and non-agricultural fertilizer 0.3 percent.

Phosphorus- agriculture 68 percent; malfunctioning on-lot septic systems 13 percent; storm water 10 percent; atmospheric deposition seven percent; and non-agricultural fertilizer 0.2 percent.

The results of this study reinforce the value of DEP's nutrient management program as well as a number of DEP's air and water program initiatives such as providing funding for watershed restoration efforts through the Governor's Growing Greener Initiative, developing new on-lot sewage systems and working with operators and communities for improved septic system maintenance and operating programs, and promoting the establishment of multi-stage oxide controls to reduce atmospheric deposition of nutrients. Other initiatives include building capacity of county conservation districts to work on local watershed improvement projects, and continuing with the successful implementation of the Pennsylvania watershed approach to environmental protection, as recommended by the Governor's 21st Century Environment Commission.

A Copy of DEP's "Assessment and Recommendations for Abatement of NPS Pollution" may be viewed on the DEP website (directLINK "Nutrient Management").

Careful Selection Breeds Results For Coldsprings Farms

cludes 60 percent production and 40 percent type. It's not a bad slide rule."

Hoff developed the sire, Etazon Brian, ranked among Holsteins' elite Top 100 TPI sires. Hoff has also been responsible for 6 Gold Medal sires in the AI industry. Coldsprings Farms has sent between 15 and 20 mature bulls to stud. Over the years Coldsprings Farms has sent more than 80 young sires to AI service.

Hoff also looks at the kind of family that iss behind the cow.

"Fifty years ago, a good cow family could get you by a bad bull. I've found over the years that a cow that has several generations of good cows behind her has more of a chance of having a good calf than a good cow without the background," he said.

"Production is my number one priority, but with type in the back of my mind. I also pay attention to components. I think the udder, feet, and legs are important and maybe, to a greater extent than most people think, capacity," said Hoff.

The 550 milk cows are kept on the central farm with the heifers, dry cows, and calves kept on nearby farms. Ninety-four percent of the herd is homebred and 97 percent is registered.

The cows are milked in a double-20 parallel parlor with automatic identification and milk weight recording. During the last three years, the herd has averaged almost 24,000 pounds of milk, 900 pounds of fat, and 770 pounds of protein with a twice-a-day milkin. The farm has had 625 cows with lifetime production of more than 100,000 pounds of milk and/or 4,000 pounds of fat and/or 3,000 pounds of protein. Marlin has also bred 112 Dams of Merit and 60 Gold Medal Dams.

The farm includes 1,000 acres in close proximity with 480 additional acres in the vicinity. Crops include 900 acres of corn, 300 acres of soybeans, 200 acres of alfalfa, 150 acres of timothy hay and smaller amounts of barley and wheat.

Hoff began in 1963 with 80 cows and 80 heifers and has grown from there. He began registering calves in 1950 with an alphabet system. With this system the years were assigned a different letter of the alphabet, so the calves born in 1950 had names beginning with an "A". The farm has been through the alphabet twice, and the system proved cumbersome at times such as the "Q" year. Currently the calves are designated by a number and letter. "The names got too confusing," said Hoff, who tells the story of having an exciting ride chasing down "Vail" before she went to the butcher in place of her counterpart "Veil."

"We expanded four years ago from 350 cows. We had a parlor capable of milking twice as many cows," said Hoff, who cites economic reasons as the motivation for increasing numbers.

Because of the replacement heifers available, Hoff was able to increase numbers without purchasing a large number of animals outside the farm.

Coldsprings Farms has been handed down...and handed down...and handed down. "My family came in 1869 to the home farm here," said Hoff. The original farm building, however, has burnt down twice.

Originally interested in singing, Hoff went to New York for voice lessons before he joined the Maryland Judging Team in 1959. "That's what made me get interested in breeding good cattle, my judging experience. I got to see good cattle in every breed. And every breed has good cattle."

Because of these experiences, by the time Hoff reached college four years after graduation, he knew exactly where he wanted to focus his studies.

After graduating with a degree in dairy science from the University of Maryland, Hoff returned to purchase his own farm located near Coldsprings Farms. Only one year later Hoff took his father's offer and purchased the 260 acre family farm.

"Probably two-thirds of this herd traces back to three cows," said Hoff. "A heifer my father bought in Canada, one I bought

(Turn to Page A41)

Several lines of calf hutches stretch across the green hills of the farm. The calves, which go through an extensive vaccination program, are housed in about 100 hutches. The 550 milk cows are kept on the central farm in freestalls with the heifers in loose housing on nearby farms.

Hoff's sons Matt, 31, left and Ian, 33, not pictured, are an integral part of the operation. Matt manages the crops and works on the feed rations while Ian works with the cows and heifers. Hoff's wife Kathy "keeps everyone straight," said Hoff, and takes care of the bookwork for the farm.

The Berks County Holstein Club will be visiting the Stoltzfus family's new 450 cow dairy operation in Somerset County on Saturday, September 2, 2000. The bus will leave Fleetwood Grange at 7 a.m. and will make a second pick-up at the Morgantown McDonalds at the entrance to the Pa. Cost of the trip will be $25, and reservations must be made to Dave Bitler at 610-944-0541 or Tim Kurtz at 610-286-6825 by August 25, 2000. Reservations are on a first come, first serve basis.

Careful Selection Breeds Results For Coldsprings Farms

at a sale in Virginia in 1957, and one I bought at a herd dispersal in 1957.

"They just stayed around, and their daughters stayed around, and 50 years later there's a whole bunch of them around," said Hoff.

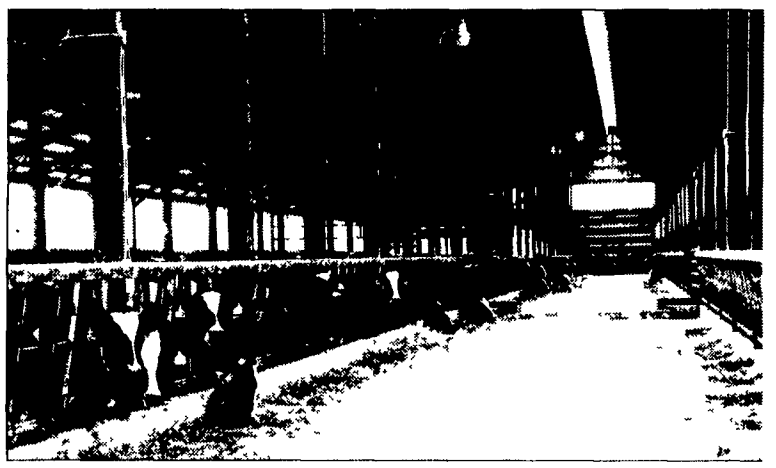
Today's herd has built up from a sale of 250 head in 1990. Hoff used to host a production sale almost every year to sell about 75 head, but has not since expansion. About 100 head a year are sold privately.

Coldsprings Farms has been a frequent player in shows, as Hoff enjoys the show ring scene. His cows appear at the district show, the Maryland State Fair, and Maryland's Spring Holstein Show.

"I show the mature cows and let the 4-H'ers show the heifers," he said.

Hoff and his wife both enjoy playing golf whenever time allows, plus spending time with two granddaughters. Hoff also sits on the Maryland/Virginia Milk Producer's board and has served eight years on the U.S. Holstein Board.

The addition of a new computer three years ago has helped Hoff keep track of milking details. A transponder located in the cow's collar, right, reads and records what time the milker came off the cow, conductivity levels, her weekly average of milk production, how much she has given per lactation, plus totals for the groups milked in the morning and afternoon shifts. Hoff helps out often with milking. "I like to see the cows and enjoy milking," he said.



A long line of black-and-white faces stretches the length of the farm's newest, freestall barn. The 24-inch gap in the ceiling aids in ventilation. A sloped floor moves rain out of the barn.

all the field demonstrations. Inside, farmers will find displays explaining demonstrations and can talk with company representatives and extension agents.

• Manure application systems. Stop by the Demonstration Tent at the south end of the demo field to see the latest innovations in manure application machinery and custom spreaders and talk with experienced applicators. Displays will cover the "Five Keys To Nutrient Management Planning." To start your nutrient management plan, there will be soil sample bags, forage analysis kits, and manure sampling containers at the site. If you'd like to know the pH of your soil, bring a sample to the field days and Cornell Cooperative Extension educators will test it right there.

Have questions about weeds or crop insects? Bring a sample from your fields and find some answers.

• Livestock handling demonstrations. Back by popular demand, the livestock handling demonstrations are scheduled at 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. daily (weather permitting). Attendees can watch a livestock handling demonstration that illustrates several types of chute and corral systems working cattle safely and easily. A number of the Empire Heifer Development animals will be on display.

Watch cattle work through the chute system, then discuss each system's pros and cons with company representatives and Cornell Cooperative Extension livestock specialists. Discussions of beef quality assurance, vaccination protocol, feeder calf management, and best handling techniques will also be covered. The livestock handling demonstrations are coordinated by the CCE NWNY Dairy, Livestock, and Field Crops Team and Empire Farm Days.

Livestock handling demonstrations are conducted on the southeast side of the exhibit area near the Demonstration Tent.

• Pesticide recertification talks. These are offered by the New York State Department of Environmental Conservation at 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. daily. Farmers can attend the hour-long talks and receive recertification credits.

Also at Empire Farm Days is the Farm Bureau Family Center, which includes:

• A chance to visit the center's "Farm Corner" to get the "feel" for milking with "Li'l Belle," herd replica, who was specially constructed for this experience, and collect eggs, pick apples, grapes, and more. FFA will help to guide you through the "farm experience."

• A tribute to those past winners of the bureau's Citizenship and Scholarship Award Program.

New Dairy Agent In Adams County

Vinton Smith was recently appointed as a Regional Dairy Extension Agent with Penn State Cooperative Extension. He will be serving Adams, Cumberland, and York counties.

Mr. Smith brings a variety of experiences to the position based in Adams County. He comes to Penn State from Cornell Cooperative Extension of Cayuga County, NY, where he worked as a Dairy and Livestock Extension Agent.

Prior to working in New York, he spent nearly four years managing his family's dairy farm in Mercer County, Pa.

Mr. Smith plans to help dairymen address many of the challenges that are confronting them. In particular, he plans to focus his efforts in several key management areas, which include labor human resource management, and overall dairy farm business analysis. He also plans to focus on milker herdsman training, cow comfort, ventilation, and cooling issues, and computer, technology, and internet training.

In addition, Mr. Smith will be actively addressing issues related to hiring Hispanic workers. He will focus on both Hispanic worker training and training for dairies employing Hispanic workers.

Mr. Smith is joining Penn State Cooperative Extension just as the Capitol Region Dairy Team, (including Franklin, Adams, Cumberland, York, Lancaster, Lebanon, and Dauphin counties) is gearing up to work together to address the needs of dairy producers in this region.

The "Dairy Team" concept will give agents the opportunity to specialize in particular areas of dairy production and management.

This will enable Cooperative Extension to be better prepared to address the needs of dairy producers while providing high quality educational opportunities for them.

Mr. Smith can be contacted in his Adams County office at 670 Old Harrisburg Road, Suite 204, Gettysburg, PA 17325. Phone (717) 334-6271 or vsmith@psu.edu.

Vinton Smith is a recent addition to the Penn State Cooperative Extension serving Adams, Cumberland, and York Counties. After working as a dairy and livestock extension agent in New York, Smith has returned to Pennsylvania where he will be based in Adams County.

This year the center will contain exhibits, demonstrations, and health and safety tips from the following groups: Cornell Agricultural Health and Safety Program, New York Center For Agricultural Medicine and Health, FARMEDIC, 4-H Tractor Certification Program, Community Partners For Healthy Farmers, New York State Department of Health, Operation Lifesaver/NYSDOT, Sertoma/Hearing Screening Van, Finger Lakes Poison Control Center, Cornell Breast Cancer Program, PTO Retrofit Center, and New York State Agricultural Health Clinics.

Final Payments Conclude Disaster Relief Program

Dauphin, and Schuylkill counties has received a total of almost $13 million in drought assistance.

The final crop loss payments, which have been sent out in recent weeks, reflect the remaining balance of the $60 million portion of the 1999 disaster-relief package. Other segments of the program, the $5 million Hay Rebate Assistance Program, and the $5.6 million Crop Insurance Assistance Program, brought the overall drought-assistance package to $70.6 million.

Under this plan, the $5.6 million designated for crop insurance assistance will be administered directly through insurance underwriters and the federal Risk Management Agency, which will make the program easier for subscribers to use. The state Department of Agriculture has arranged to have farmers' crop insurance billing statements reflect the state's 10 percent premium and fees assistance. This will eliminate the need for farmers to wait for reimbursement after paying for their crop loss insurance.

"The Commonwealth's efforts in making these funds available quickly, highlighted the Administration's responsiveness to Pennsylvania's agricultural community. It has helped farmers to protect their viability and their capacity to produce food and fiber," Hayes said.

During the Lebanon Fair this week Hayes presented a symbolic check to representatives of the area producers and representatives of the agriculture industry. Jeffrey Werner, president of the farm bureau, accepted the more than $1 million check, made out to Lebanon county farmers for hay and crop loss and crop insurance assistance.

"I cannot have a complete year if I can't spend a bit of time here at the Lebanon Fair," said Agriculture Secretary Samuel Hayes. "It's one of the great agricultural extravaganzas of the year in the commonwealth of Pennsylvania." Photo by Michelle Ranck

Dairy Checkoff Update

Producers Shaping Unified Dairy Promotion Plan At Regional Forums

Hundreds of dairy producer leaders on state, regional and national dairy promotion boards are meeting this summer in a series of forums meant to help finalize the dairy industry's first unified marketing plan. These forums, being held in five locations around the country between the end of July and mid August, give these dairy producer representatives the opportunity to voice their interests and concerns to ensure the development of a strong plan to increase consumer demand for dairy products.

The 2001 unified marketing plan will be developed with grassroots producer involvement, understanding and support. The plan will include local market needs and opportunities, and cover both domestic and export markets.

The plan also includes significant support from and benefit to the dairy industry as a whole with meaningful measurement criteria to assess how well promotion programs are working besides consistent implementation at significant levels of impact.

"The plan will increase total impact by reaching more target consumer audiences, including Hispanic populations, and more influencer audiences, such as school principals, who will be challenged to promote milk instead of soft drinks in their schools," said Tom Gallagher, chief executive officer of Dairy Management Inc., which manages the national dairy checkoff on behalf of America's diary producers.

The plan also strives to make sure dairy producer promotion dollars reach the most consumers possible, especially when a large percentage of those consumers reside in parts of the country other than where producer dollars originate. At the same time, local producer boards will continue to have control over their respective budgets in determining where producer promotion dollars go, Gallagher said.

To reach its target audiences, the plan will make use of a variety of marketing tools, including: nutrition marketing (such as the nutrition education programs of National Dairy Council), retail promotion, food service promotion, public relations, product publicity, business-to-business marketing, and product and nutrition research.

Britney Spears Milk Promotion Campaign Targets Grocery Stores, Schools

Producer- and processor-sponsored dairy promotion is linking its sponsorship of teen rock star Britney Spear's summer concerts with an integrated fluid milk promotion that will hit retail stores and school cafeterias in August and September.

The "Crazy For Milk And Britney" promotion gives consumers the chance to get free Britney Spears locker posters in supermarkets with the purchase of two gallons of milk.

To promote chocolate milk consumption with Britney's young fan base, a chocolate milk sweepstakes will be launched in both grocery and convenience stores. To play, consumers will enter bar code numbers from gallons, half gallons, quarts or pints of chocolate milk by calling 800-FUNMILK or via the www.britneyspears.com Web site. Prizes include "got milk?" and Britney Spears merchandise.

More than 400 grocery store chains representing 18,000 stores are signed up to participate, representing more than 60 percent of the total retail food volume purchased in the U.S.

In addition, participating school districts looking to drive more students through their lunch lines will display "Crazy for Milk Britney" counter cards to help merchandise plastic single-serve containers of milk, as well as give-a-way items for students who purchase milk. The cards read, "Grow Your Student Body. Drink Milk."

People Who Make The Fair Go 'Round

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

NORTH CORNWALL (Lebanon Co.) — Swingin' at the 44th annual Lebanon Area Fair, from July 29-Aug. 5, included lots of new entertainment this year, but it's the traditional competitions and food that continue to provide day-to-day enjoyment for thousands of people.

From 5 a.m. to midnight, volunteers keep busy preparing and serving food, and of course, cleaning up the mess. Catherine Schott, who is in charge of The Eatery, said that 3½ tons of potatoes are turned into French fries. Some of the other amounts needed to satisfy the cravings of fair visitors include 900 pounds of soup, 1,200 hamburgers, 800 of pounds pork barbecue, and 40,000 drinks.

Required daily are three shifts with 25-30 people on all shifts.

"I want to stress that these are all volunteers. None of us are paid for the eight days. It's amazing how everyone pitches in to get the work done," Schott said.

Schott celebrated her 65th birthday during fair week. She said, "I love what I do. I hate to retire."

In her years at the fair, Schott has watched several generations grow up and help her in the kitchen.

Baking competitions include a mix of old and new names. An ecstatic Danette Ocker, Myerstown, claimed the top prize in the Blue Ribbon Apple Pie contest. Last year, she took second place, so this year, she used a new recipe.

The unusual aspect of her recipe is that it uses yellow delicious apples.

"I'm diabetic, so I don't want to add much sugar," Ocker said of her choice of the apple variety.

Ocker is following in the footsteps of her grandmother, who was an award winner. Ocker's hobby is baking and one that was perfected with the oversight of her grandmother and mother.

In competition, Ocker also entered and received ribbons for shoofly pie, apple oatmeal coffeecake, oatmeal whoopie pie, pumpkin cookies, and zucchini bread.

At this point, Ocker only enters her local fair, but she is considering doing what many others are doing — traveling the fair circuit to enter other county fairs.

Dot and Deb Martin are a mother and daughter team from the southern end of Lancaster County. The two are prolific bakers who have garnered hundreds of ribbons from local fairs and from the Pennsylvania Farm Show.

At the Lebanon Fair, Deb took first place in the Hershey's Cocoa Cake contest. She's keeping her recipe a secret in quest for the state competition.

Her mother Dot placed second in the apple pie contest with her cream cheese streusel pie.

Another mother and daughter duo who enter numerous fairs also had a good reward at the Lebanon Fair. Katie Myers, Dallastown, took first place with her chocolate brownies. The 16-year-old is a former first-place winner at the Pennsylvania Farm Show in the same category.

Katie's mom, Belinda, placed third in the chocolate cake contest. Belinda baked the best cake in the state at the Farm Show three years ago.

Mollie Knause, 11, placed second with her Black Forest Brownies. Two years ago, she also placed second at the Lebanon Fair. Her sister Emilee and mother Connie are former top winners in baking competition at Lebanon.

In her first competition, Tara Dice, 10, took third prize for her S'mores Brownies.

"My mom made me enter," the 10-year-old said. Tara wasn't complaining. She hopes to follow in her mother's footsteps. Her mom Lori received the Homemaker Award of the Year this year. This was her fourth year in placing in that category, but the first time to walk away with the top prize.

Competition for the Homemaker of the Year involves setting up a display that includes two sewing articles, a craft, a canned item, and a baked item.

Lori set up an eye-appealing display by covering the table with a folk-art chicken theme. Inside an authentic chicken crate was the replica of a hen. Surrounding the display to illustrate her homemaking skills were a quillow, canned peaches, apron, flowers, decoupage plate, flowers, and a plate of molasses cookies.

Here are some of the winning recipes for readers to enjoy.

Chocolate Cherry Cream Cake

Cake:
- 2 cups sugar
- 1 cup butter
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- ¼ cup sour cream
- 2 cups buttermilk
- 2 eggs
- 2½ cups cake flour
- 1 cup baking cocoa
- 2 teaspoons baking soda

Grease three 8-inch cake pans.

Cream sugar and butter together. Add eggs and vanilla. Beat until light and fluffy. Mix flour, cocoa, baking soda, and salt. Blend into creamed mixture alternately with sour cream and buttermilk. Divide dough batter evenly between three prepared pans. Bake in 325-degree oven for 30-35 minutes. Cool. Place one layer on doily-covered cake board.

Cherry Cream Filling:
- 3-ounce package cooked vanilla pudding
- 1 cup evaporated milk

Cook in small saucepan over medium heat until mixture thickens. Cool.

Cream:
- ½ cup butter
- 1 cup sugar
- ½ teaspoon vanilla
- ½ cup shortening

Beat butter, sugar, vanilla, and shortening in large mixer bowl until fluffy, approximately 10 minutes. Fold in cooked pudding mixture. Blend well. Add 1 cup chopped cherry pie filling and 1 tablespoon Kirsch cherry liquor. Fold in completely.

Icing:
- 1½ cups butter
- 1 cup cocoa
- 1 tablespoon vanilla
- 6 cups confectioners' sugar

Melt together cocoa and butter. Stir until smooth. Place all ingredients in large mixer bowl. Gradually add drops of milk until icing is of spreading consistency.

To assemble cake:

Split or torte each cake layer in half. In between layers, spread ½ cup cherry cream filling. Continue to layer each layer ending with cake. Frost cake with icing. Decorate top of cake with cherry cream, cherries, and chocolate.

Makes one three-layer 8-inch round cake.

Belinda Myers

S'mores Brownies
- ½ cup butter, melted
- 1 cup sugar
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 2 eggs
- ½ cup unsifted flour
- ⅓ cup baking cocoa
- ¼ teaspoon baking powder
- ¼ teaspoon salt

Topping:
- 1 cup mini marshmallows
- ½ cup mini chocolate chips
- ⅔ cup fine chopped nuts

Mix together butter, sugar, eggs, and vanilla. Add flour, cocoa, baking powder, and salt. Bake 25-30 minutes at 350 degrees. Remove from oven and spread on topping in order listed. Bake 5 more minutes. Place on cooling rack and cool completely. Cut into squares. Makes 9-12 brownies.

Tara Dice

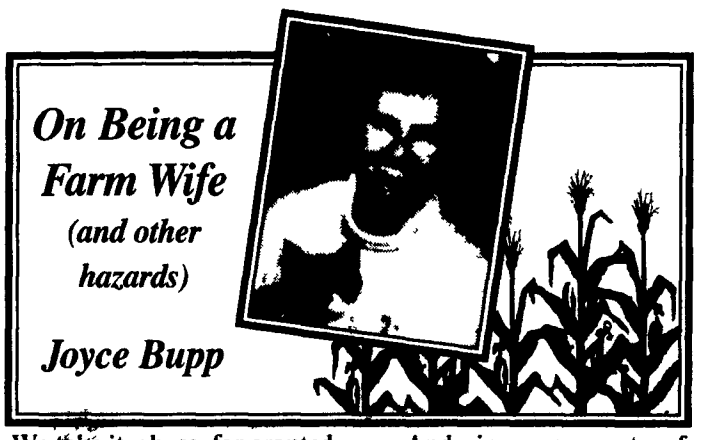
(Turn to Page B9)

Part of the crew that feeds fairgoers include these volunteers, clockwise from front, Chelsea Horst, 11; Catherine Schott, chairman of the food stands; Dustin Lentz, 12; Mark Ruhl, 13; Kevin Kreider, 13; Eric Ziegler, 14; and Kirby Horst, fair board member and dairy committee chairman.

To become Lebanon Fair Queen, Beth Kreider wrote an essay on what the fair means to her, presented a 3-5 minute speech, answered the impromptu question about ethics and how it affects her generation, and underwent the interviewing process. The 16-year-old is one busy lady this week. She arises early to pick produce to sell at the family farm's roadside stand before rushing off to represent the fair.

Danette Ocker, right, shows off her Apple Streusel Pie that placed first and enables her to advance to state competition. Dot Martin placed second.

Deb Martin, left, baked the best cake in the Hershey's Cocoa Cake Contest, and Belinda Myers, last year's first-place winner, placed third.



We take it, oh, so, for granted.

Green grass. Nature's own all-natural, 100-percent organic carpeting, soft and cushy underfoot.

Green trees. Whispering in the breezes. Filled with birdsongs. Cooling us with their shade.

Green all around us. Especially this greenhouse-like summer, with corn stretching skyward, lush stands of alfalfa, fields thick with soybean stalks jostling for open space to push out foliage. Not to mention the weeds poking up from any teeny corner of soil, elbowing up through flowerbed mulches, waving down from uncleaned raingutters and nodding from cracks in driveways and sidewalks.

Green. All around us.

But not so many other places, including parts of the South, where drought disasters have been declared.

And, in many parts of this country, green is part of the natural look only brief periods of the year. Like the desert, where our son lives.

Actually, some of it doesn't look like a desert at all. Opposite their front porch is a lush, green alfalfa field, as beautiful a stand of this forage crop as could be found anywhere in the world. Several times each week through the growing season, a huge, aluminum pivot irrigation system inches slowly past, sprinkling a soaking of cool water for a few hours. Its rhythmic "ticka, ticka, ticka" may sweep through the neighborhood at noon or at midnight, whispering the message of watering the desert.

Literally. For just inches away from the farthest droplets which cascade in a rainbow to the ground is an environment far different than that in the leafy stands of alfalfa, corn stalks as thick as several-year-old saplings, heavy potato foliage and the chard-like crinkly tops of sugar beets. Just inches away from the edge of the watered lines, the green turns abruptly into ragged stands of swarthy-stemed sagebrush. Dry, brown clumps of cheat grass. A small weed with a prickly seedpod the locals call "goat heads." (Goat heads stick in your bare toes and work their way down into your sneakers.) Each footstep you take kicks up a puff of sandy dust.

This is the southern Idaho desert. And in mid-July, the desert is bake-oven, bleached-bone dry. Hot (as in 100 degrees with blast-furnace breezes). Brown. Prickly. Ready to burn like the wind with the slightest spark.

Just as it does here in York County, water makes all the difference in whether the world looks green or brown. (Remember how brown and dry we looked last year?) Ten-inches of moisture per year is the norm there, most of it falling in the winter. A quarter-inch is a downpour. In the sandy soil and almost-nil humidity, moisture evaporates almost immediately.

And so endless miles of aluminum piping, in a myriad of engineered irrigation systems, crank millions of gallons of water onto this desert land every day, from about mid-May through September. Hundreds of thousands of deep well pumps drink deeply from the huge Magic Valley aquifer. Pumping stations and wide canals borrow from the majestic flow of the Snake River and send the lifeblood of water in a tremendous network of watering systems.

Watering systems, which turn the desert green, help feed us and the rest of the world.

Checking the garden after our return home, I felt a deep gratitude of our natural greenery. For tomato plants sprawling into the lima beans and nudging into the zinnias, for melons braiding their stalks together with nearby cucumber and butternut squash. For pole string bean plants creeping over the border fence, peppers hanging crooked with fruit, and pumpkin stalks climbing through the dairy barn windows.

I truly finding myself rejoicing for our natural green, even if it does suffocate us with humidity.

At least we don't have to watch out for rattlesnakes with every step we take.

Meadow Wildflowers

COLLEGEVILLE (Montgomery Co.) — "Natural Landscapes and Habitats," Church of the Holy Spirit, in Vernfield, starts at 6 p.m. on Tuesday, August 29.

The church is in the process of converting a large area of mowed lawn into a meadow. In cooperation with the Unami chapter of the Audubon Society, the meadow area was prepared and seeded last year. A bird blind has also been installed. Not only is the church saving money on mowing and fertilizer, they now have an educational area to use for children's and public programs.

A native wildflower meadow looks a bit "scruffy" in its first year, as the deep-rooted plants are working on establishing their root systems. To control aggressive intrusions by non-native weeds, meadow managers may have to mow to a 4-8-inch level, and even hand-pull or spot-spray some weeds. By the second or third year, the meadow plants can turn their energies above ground to produce prolific blooms and seeds. With their vigorous growth crowding out undesirable plants, the only maintenance needed may be an annual mowing in the late winter or early spring. Birds, butterflies, and beneficial insects thrive in native meadows.

To receive a walk schedule and registration form, send a self-addressed stamped envelope to Recycling Education Program, Natural Landscapes & Habitat Walks, 1015 Bridge Road, Suite H, Collegeville, PA 19426, or call the Recycling Education Program at (610) 489-4315.

Consuming Thoughts

by

Fay Strickler

Penn State Extension Home Economist For Berks Co.

Appearances can be deceiving, especially in the bread aisle of the supermarket. You're on the lookout for a bread that's high in fiber, the most nutritious you can find for your family. You pick up a loaf that's a warm brown color with the word "wheat" prominently displayed on the label. If you thought you'd chosen a whole-grain bread chock full of vitamins, minerals, and fiber-rich bran, you'd not be the first mistaken shopper.

It's surprising the number of people who don't know that there is a difference between wheat bread and whole wheat bread. Most breads are made with wheat flour, namely refined white flour that has had the bran and germ mechanically removed. In most cases, the flour is enriched, by adding back three B vitamins and iron which were removed in the refining process. This light-colored flour is sometimes darkened by adding a harmless caramel coloring agent.

So what is labeled wheat bread, regardless of how it looks, is basically the same as what we commonly call white bread. Whole wheat bread, by contrast, is made from the whole grain. Because the bran and germ have not been removed, it has a naturally dark brown color is higher in fiber and nutrients than wheat bread.

Although some vitamins are put back in to "enrich" wheat flour, not everything that's removed in the refining process is added back again. This is particularly the case with fiber, which comes primarily from the bran. Generally, whole wheat bread is higher in fiber than wheat bread. Check the nutrition label for the fiber content. Two to three grams of fiber per slice is a good number to shoot for. Four grams per slice is even better.

Be particularly careful to check the fiber content on so-called six-grain or 12-grain bread. Some of these multi-grain breads are made primarily from refined wheat flour, hence may contain little fiber.

Breads identified by a particular grain, such as oat bread, may also not be what the name implies. Oat bread is often just wheat bread (i.e., white bread) with a small amount of oats added. Check the ingredients to see how far down oats are listed. Remember the ingredients are written in descending order, with the most plentiful ingredient listed first.

Another potentially misleading term is "unbleached" flour. The term unbleached just means that the wheat flour hasn't been chemically bleached to make it whiter. Unbleached flour, which may be slightly cream colored, isn't the same as whole wheat flour.

So shoppers beware. When it comes to buying bread, color says nothing about content or nutritional value. Read the full product name and compare it carefully to the ingredients label. As of 1994, most packaged foods including breads are required to list the dietary fiber content as part of a mandatory nutrition facts panel. This regulation should make it easier for you to compare the nutritional value, including fiber content, of various breads.

Specialty Cheese Production, Marketing

LE RAYSVILLE (Bradford Co.) — Producers and beginning farmers who would like to learn about making and marketing specialty cheese are invited to attend a Pennsylvania Farm Link sponsored meeting at the Le Raysville Cheese Factory on August 9 from 1-4 p.m.

Owner Jim Amery will describe how he got started in the cheese making business, purchasing local dairy products from local farmers, the challenges of making cheese and his marketing efforts and outlets. His cheeses won first and second prizes in national competition at the 1995 American Cheese Society judging in Green Bay, Wisconsin.

Le Raysville Cheese Factory was built by a group of Old-Order Amish farmers in 1978 to carry on the tradition of locally-owned creameries making cheese to suit the taste and demanding standards of local people.

Jim Amery continues to carry on this tradition, making old style raw milk Cheddar, pasteurized Pennsylvania Jack, Sommeleir, Pepper Cheddar, reduced fat Portelet and fresh Cheddar Cheese Curds. No artificial fillers, preservatives or harmful chemicals are used in processing. The raw milk cheddar is aged at least 60 days, the equivalent of pasteurization. Extra sharp cheddar is aged at least one to two years or more.

To reach the Le Raysville Cheese Factory, take Route 6 in Wyalusing to Route 706 northeast past Stevensville. Take 467 north and turn left at the sign off Route 476, ½ mile west of Le Raysville and follow dirt road ¼ mile to the factory on the right.

Space is limited to the first 30 people, so contact Pennsylvania Farm Link at 717-664-7077 to reserve your place in this free workshop by August 7 or for additional information on other marketing events.

Farm Link is sponsoring a series of marketing meetings to assist beginning farmers and others looking for marketing opportunities. Pennsylvania Farm Link is a non-profit organization governed by a Board of Directors representing diverse agricultural interests that works to create farming opportunities.

Never finance a car again!

Pretty shocking concept, don't you think?

After housing, transportation is the second largest expense a family faces. For many families, financing cars is an accepted means of obtaining transportation. Here's a process that, if carefully followed, can assure you a new car every three years, with no interest payments. In fact, this technique depends on you earning interest! No, there is nothing illegal about this strategy, but it does require self-discipline.

A new $12,000 car financed at eight percent for three years has monthly payments of $376 for a total cost of $13,536, 13 percent of which ($1,536) is interest. Once paid for, most families find somewhere else to spend the money normally allocated to car purchases. Instead, continue to pay the $376 monthly payments, not to the finance company, but to yourself. Set up a money market fund where after three years at five percent compounded annually you will have accumulated $14,935, less taxes.

This amount, plus the trade-in value of your now six-year-old car should allow you to purchase your next car without financing!

By continuing to make monthly payments to your money market account, in another three years you will have enough set aside to trade your three- year-old car toward a new one and continue trading every three years throughout your life and never finance a car again!

Because your monthly set aside includes the initial interest you were paying plus the interest earning capacity, over time you will be able to modify the type of vehicle you are purchasing. As time passes, if your family grows or your tastes mature, you can afford a larger, more accommodating car.

Even though inflation will cause the cost of vehicles to rise, the compounding of these two interest factors is enough to maintain and even exceed your present buying power. Over time, you could reduce the amount you set aside each month because your payment to yourself doesn't need to include the finance charge. The interest earned on the account should keep up with taxes and inflation and still maintain your buying power.

Maybe a $376 monthly payment is too steep for you. Financing the same $12,000 for 48 months at eight percent drops your monthly payments to $292. Using the same strategy, financing the car for four years and driving it for six, your two years of monthly contributions to yourself will yield about $7,354 (less taxes) which, if used with your trade-in value, will greatly reduce the amount you need to finance on the second car. Assuming the amount you finance is just $3,500, your ongoing $292 payments could pay that off in a year. Continuing to save the $292 for the next three years will yield $11,598 (less taxes) plus trade-in value of a now four-year-old car should enable you to purchase your third car without financing. From this point on you should be able to trade-in every three years and never finance again.

If these numbers don't seem realistic to you, use computer programs such as Quicken or Microsoft Money or Internet-based financial planning calculators to come up with a plan to fit your family transportation and budget needs. The dollar figures used in this example illustrate the concept of never paying finance charges again.

Variables not taken into account which impact the final actual dollar values include cost of vehicle plus taxes, title, current interest and inflation rates, and your tax bracket.

This technique does take commitment, a change in attitude and behavior. Once you resolve to never pay finance charges again, and commit to making monthly transportation payments, the concept of never financing a car again doesn't sound shocking at all.

Over your lifetime, the car loan interest you've saved and interest earned can add up to tens of thousands of dollars. Changing how you handle transportation costs gives you one more way to increase your net worth and assure your family a sound financial future.

Painless Ways To Reduce Household Expenses

To make ends meet and, better still, to get ahead, you can reduce household expenses and debt, increase income, or do all three.

Here are some ideas to consider:

Housing

- Consider refinancing an existing mortgage if savings exceed the cost.
- Ask your mortgage lender to cancel private mortgage insurance (PMI) when home equity reaches 20 percent of home value (e.g., $20,000 of equity on a $100,000 home).
- Purchase appliances with a high Energy Efficiency Ratio (EER).

Food

- Combine coupons with store sales and/or product rebates for additional savings.
- Buy in bulk when items are on sale or in season (e.g., produce).
- Buy store or generic brands if they have the cheapest price.

Transportation

- Keep a car as long as possible to reduce depreciation and financing costs.
- Consider buying a late model used car instead of a new one.
- Purchase airline tickets during fare wars and stay over a Saturday night to get a cheaper fare.

Clothing

- Shop department store clearance sales, consignment stores, factory outlets, thrift shops, and/or flea markets for clothing discounts.
- Buy washable clothing to avoid dry cleaning charges.
- Build a wardrobe around just a few dominant colors or neutrals to enhance "mixing and matching."

Utilities

- Use e-mail in lieu of phone calls to reduce telephone charges.
- Sign up for a long-distance telephone savings plan.
- Close off unused rooms in the winter to conserve heat.
- Insulate your hot water heater and reduce the temperature to 120 degrees.

Financial Management

- Switch to credit cards with a low annual percentage rate (APR) if you revolve a balance.
- Increase collision and comprehensive deductibles and drop coverage completely on older cars.
- Inquire about insurance discounts (e.g., for buying all property insurance from the same company).
- Reorder checks and deposit slips from a mail order firm instead of a bank.

Other

- Eliminate "rarely-used" expenses such as health club dues, call waiting, and premium cable channels.
- Trim gambling expenses (e.g., lottery tickets) and expensive habits (e.g., smoking).
- Always inquire about discounts, especially when traveling and paying cash for items.

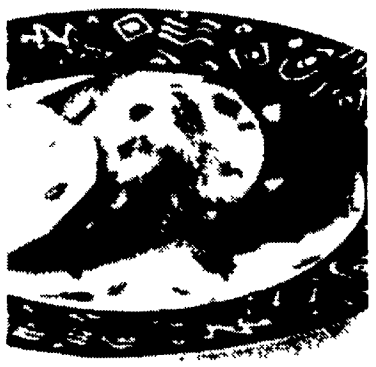
In-Season Tomatoes Burst With Flavor And Possibilities



Tomato-Mozzarella Salad Dijon provides in-season flavor.

The flavor of fresh tomatoes varies not only from the variety but also according to when picked. The less ripe they are when picked, the less flavor.

That's why vine-ripened tomatoes available from local gardens taste so much better than those picked green in distant states and shipped to ripen between the farm and you.

Select tomatoes with a good shape and a smooth, even skin that has no breaks, bruises, or green or yellow patches. Tomatoes should feel heavy for their size and be red and slightly soft. Firmer tomatoes will ripen given time.

Small tomatoes are best for making salads and casseroles. Medium and large ones are good for slicing, stuffing, or marinating. Overripe tomatoes of all sizes are best used in making tomato sauce.

Leave unripened tomatoes at room temperature. Store ripened tomatoes refrigerated in a plastic bag or in a refrigerator drawer for three to seven days. Long refrigeration will cause them to loose flavor and nutrients.

OPEN-FACE TOMATO SANDWICH

On a cookie sheet, place four slices white bread. Top with four slices white American cheese. Top each with a generous slice of tomatoes. Top each with two slices partially cooked bacon. Broil until bacon is done and cheese is light brown.

- 3 tablespoons salt
- 2 tablespoons garlic powder
- 1 tablespoon chili powder
- 2 teaspoons cumin
- 2 cups brown sugar

Cook together ingredients for 30 minutes. Thicken with Clear Jel or Therm-flo (available at most bulk food stores). Cold pack 15 minutes. Makes 34 pints.

Note: For quick and easy peeling of tomatoes, put into boiling water about one minute. Peels will slide right off.

Blender or food processor works great for chopping veggies.

Teach Kids The Financial Facts Of Life

We try to teach our kids to be street-smart, musical, athletic, and even computer literate. But teaching them the value of money can be more difficult than getting them to clean their rooms.

Given that adult Americans are saving too little of their paychecks and declaring bankruptcy in record numbers, it's essential that the next generation of consumers be better prepared to face their financial future.

You know the importance of teaching kids "the three Rs" — reading, "riting and "rithmetic. But experts who specialize in money matters for children generally agree on the need to teach them "the three Ss:"

• Saving. Putting some of their money aside so it's there to protect them in the future.

• Spending wisely. Living within their means and being educated consumers.

• Sharing. Being generous and charitable.

To help parents, guardians, and even grandparents raise financially responsible people, FDIC Consumer News offers the following suggestions:

• Give an allowance. If used as a teaching tool and not a giveaway, an allowance can be one of the best ways to teach kids, even as young as five or six, about money, taking pride in their management skills, and becoming more charitable. There are many different ways to structure an allowance and, of course, each family has to decide what's right for them (in terms of how much allowance to give, what kinds of things the child should start paying for, and so on).

• Help your child start a savings or investment account. The old piggy bank still can be a fun way to introduce little ones to the concepts of saving and managing money. But at around age eight, your child may want to open a small savings account and begin learning what banking's all about, from filling out deposit slips to reviewing statements.

• Encourage the right kinds of "child labor." Jobs can teach kids to be responsible and to enjoy earning and saving money. One way is to pay a child for extra work around the house — the kind you might hire someone else to do. This could mean cleaning the garage or baby sitting a sibling on a Saturday night. Author and family finance expert Neale S. Godfrey encourages parents to maintain a list of nonurgent jobs a child can do. "Then when your offsprings asks you for a second pair of designer sneakers or money to go ice skating with friends," she said "refer to the list." Godfrey says this "overtime pay" helps everyone — it's extra income for the child and a time-saver for busy moms and dads.

• Play "show and tell" while you manage your own money. If you expect your kids to become responsible with their money, and yours, you have to practice what you preach. Serve as a good example of what it means to save, spend wisely, and share with others. You'll make more of an impression on your children if they can see and hear what you're doing to manage your money.

• Make learning about money fun and interesting. We've already mentioned a few ways to stimulate a child's interests in saving, spending wisely, and sharing money with others.

Final thoughts. One of the best things we can do for our children is to prepare them for life "on their own." Whether your kids are tots or teens, instill in them a sense of responsibility when it comes to managing money, working hard, and being charitable. The time you devote to teaching the financial facts of life could be one of the most rewarding investments you ever make.

Historic Gardens Showcase Native Plants

COLLEGEVILLE (Montgomery Co.) — "Natural Landscapes and Habitats" will conduct a walk at the Historic Bartram's Garden, starting 5 p.m. on Tuesday, August 15.

Quaker botanist John Bartram was famous for discovering and collecting native plants in colonial America. The Franklinia tree, which he discovered and propagated, is now extinct in the wild.

At Historic Bartram's Garden, a garden expert will lead the Cooperative Extension tour group through a native plant exhibit, a wildflower meadow on reclaimed land (a former dump) and along the once-walled river, now restored to a wetlands as it may have looked in John Bartram's era. The Franklinia tree should be in bloom at the time of the tour.

Unlike all other walks in the "Natural Landscapes & Habitats" series, this is not a free walk. Cost will be $5.

More information on Bartram's Garden is available online at www.libertynet.org/bartrams.

To receive a walk schedule and registration form, send a self-addressed stamped envelope to Recycling Education Program, Natural Landscapes & Habitat Walks, 1015 Bridge Road, Suite H, Collegeville, PA 19426, or call the Recycling Education Program at (610) 489-4315.

Brew Sun Tea Safely

Brew a fresh batch of Sun Tea every 24 hours. Bacteria will grow if not properly refrigerated. Here are the tips from Lipton Tea:

1. Place nine Lipton Cup-Size Flo-Thru Tea Bags or three Lipton Family-Size Flo-Thru Tea Bags in a clean gallon jar. (Decaffeinated, green or herbal tea should not be used. Caffeine is a natural preservative and because there aren't any additional preservatives added, this is one form of protection against bacterial growth.)

2. Fill jar with cold water.

3. Cap the jar loosely and place it in hot sunshine for three-four hours. Do not exceed four hours.

4. After removing the tea bags, refrigerate your Sun Tea within five hours of when the brewing process started.

5. Discard the Sun Tea after 24 hours from the time brewing began. Thoroughly wash the gallon jar with hot soapy water, and rinse before each use.

Spoilage bacteria will grow if not properly refrigerated.

ANSWER — C. Martin, Benton, wanted a recipe for hash brown casserole that tastes like the side dish served at Cracker Barrel Restaurants. Thanks to Jean Chubb and Walter Durling for e-mailing the same recipe but with a different title. Durling writes that his was printed as a Copykat Recipe called the Cracker Barrel Old Country Store Hash Brown Casserole.

Old Country Store Hash Brown Casserole

2 pounds frozen hash browns
16-ounces sour cream
1 can cream of chicken soup
½ cup butter
½ cup chopped onion
2 cups grated cheddar cheese (sharp preferred)

Place potatoes in a greased 9x13-inch pan. Season with salt and pepper. In a bowl add onion, sour cream, and soup. Mix together and pour mixture over potatoes. Sprinkle with cheese. Bake at 350 degrees for 45 minutes or until hot and cheese begins to melt.

Here are two more versions of the recipe from Rachel Glick, New Holland.

Tater Tot Casserole

1 bag tater tots
1 pound frozen peas
3 pounds ground beef
2 cans cream of mushroom soup
Salt and pepper to taste
1 large onion
2 cups grated cheese

Brown ground beef with onions. Put on bottom of casserole dish. Put peas on top of ground beef. Pour mushroom soup on top of peas, then tater tops. Top with cheese. Bake 1½ hours at 350 degrees.

Hash Brown Casserole

2 pounds hash brown potatoes
1 cup grated cheese
2 cups sour cream
1 can cream of chicken soup
¼ cup onion, chopped fine
2 teaspoons parsley flakes
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon black pepper
Dash cayenne pepper

Topping:
2 cups crushed corn flakes
¼ cup melted butter

Optional to add:
¼ cup chopped celery
¼ cup grated carrots
¼ cup chopped green peppers
¼ cup purple cabbage
¼ cup grated turnips

Mix the casserole ingredients and put into a greased baking dish. Crush the corn flakes and mix with melted butter. Spread evenly over casserole. Bake 35-40 minutes at 350 degrees.

ANSWER — Herman Bean, Easton, writes that he is 78 years old. He remembers his grandmother made molasses cookies when he was a small boy. His mother still made them at 95 years of age but died 10 years ago and took the recipe with her. The dough was cut with flower or boy and girl-shaped cookie cutters. When baked, the cookies were about an inch thick, 4-inches high, and 2- or 3-inches wide. They were sort of a grayish color, soft, and had to be put into a can for a couple of days before eating. Bean said, he believes the cookies are a "Dutch favorite." Thanks to Nancy Kramer, Lebanon, for sending her recipe, which said is very old recipe. The original recipe called for lard but Nancy uses Crisco instead and the cookies turn out fine.

Soft Cut-Out Molasses Cookies

1 cup green label New Orleans molasses (Brer Rabbit)
1 cup brown sugar
¾ cup shortening
1 cup buttermilk
1 tablespoon baking soda
5 cups flour
½ teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon allspice
½ teaspoon cloves

Cream sugar and shortening. Add molasses. Dissolve baking soda in buttermilk and add alternately with dry ingredients. Mix well. Roll out on floured board and cut with large cookie cutters. Sprinkle with granulated sugar or brush with egg wash (beaten raw egg) before baking. Bake at 375 degrees for 10-12 minutes.

ATTENTION — Fred Best, Wilmington, Del., writes that he tried a rice pudding recipe sent in by Arlene Hershey, Oxford. He ended up with rice soup. He checked the recipe against over rice pudding recipes and compared the ratio of liquid volume to the uncooked rice in each recipe. The volume ratio from Arlene's recipe is 11:1 compared to others that varied from 4.5:1 to a high of 8:1. He adjusted Arlene's recipe to a 6:1 ratio and ended up with delicious rice pudding. Thanks to Fred's scientific sleuthing. Perhaps this will help other readers.

ANSWER — Dawn Black, Chambersburg, wanted a recipe for butter pecan ice cream, which had been printed several years ago in this paper. Thanks to Brenda Cleland, Carlisle, for sending this recipe that she had clipped.

Butter Pecan Ice Cream

⅛ cup butter
2 cups chopped pecans
7 cups milk, divided
14-ounces sweetened condensed milk
2 cups sugar
6 large eggs, lightly beaten
5.1-ounce package vanilla instant pudding mix
1 teaspoon vanilla extract

Melt butter in large saucepan over medium-high heat; add chopped pecans, and cook, stirring constantly, 3 minutes or until lightly browned. Drain and set aside.

Combine 1 cup milk, 1 can sweetened condensed milk, 2 cups sugar, six beaten eggs in the saucepan. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, 5 minutes or until mixture coats back of spoon. Cool. Stir in remaining 6 cups milk, pudding mix, and vanilla; add pecans, stirring well.

Pour mixture into a 5-quart freezer container, hand turned or electric. Freeze according to manufacturer's instructions. Pack freezer with additional ice and rock salt. Let stand one hour before serving. Yield: 1 gallon.

Do-It-Yourself Frozen Fruit Is Cheap, Easy

Readers ask, "Can I freeze fruit myself and get the same quality?"

It won't hurt to try. Frozen-fruit manufacturers have the advantage of quick-freezing methods and equipment, which decrease the effects of ice crystals on fruit. Keeping your freezer set at 0 degrees Fahrenheit or lower will help. Also, limit the amount of fruit you freeze within the same 24-hour period to 2 to 3 pounds per cubic foot of storage space. Trying to freeze more than that at once will affect the temperature of the freezer too much, slowing the freezing process and decreasing the quality of the fruit.

Still, freezing fruit is a great way to allow yourself to savor the tastes of summer months down the road. Freezing berries, melons, grapes and apples is easy. Here are some tips:

— Fully ripe fresh fruits can lose quality quickly, so freeze as soon as possible after harvesting.

Use only packaging materials that are designed for freezer use. Other types of containers may allow too much air to reach the fruit and cause freezer burn.

— Generally, wash fruit before freezing by rinsing several times in cold water. Don't let fruit soak. However, blueberries might end up with tough skins if washed before freezing.

— Light-colored fruits, like apples, peaches and nectarines, might benefit from being treated with ascorbic acid to prevent darkening.

— When you're ready to eat the fruit you've frozen, let it thaw in its package in the refrigerator, in a pan of cool water, or on the "defrost" setting in the microwave. It's usually best to serve it with a few ice crystals completely thawed fruits are often limp or mushy.

— Freezing fruit in sugar or syrup will add calories, but will also help the fruit retain flavor, color and shape.

For more information, see the Ohio State University fact sheet, "Freezing Fruits," on the Internet at http://ohioline.ag.ohio-state.edu/hyg-fact/5000/5349.html, or contact your county Extension office for a paper copy.

People Who Make The Fair Go 'Round

Dianne and Lyndon Hepler of Pittman and children, Matt, 8, Deidre, 11, and Kendra, 5, visit the Lebanon Fair to garner some ideas to incorporate into their own community fairs at Schuylkill and Tri-Valley. The Heplers operate a farrow-to-finish operation on their farm and serve as leaders of Grassy Meadows 4-H.

Erin Willard, 14, leads a Hampshire yearling during leadline competition. Erin placed first in the senior division. The wool for Erin's red wool sweater and straight skirt with a matching beret and scarf came from the sheep on her grandparents' farm.

Homemaker of the Year Lori Dice sits by her display that shows off her multiple talents that enabled her to garner first place.

Kurt Fleener prepares Dairy Queen and Princess Susie for breeding sheep competition, where he captured the champion and reserve title for the Hampshire breed.

Showing the Supreme Champion Breeding Sheep is Kyle Fleener, Robesonia, who shows a homebred Suffolk-Hamp Crossbred. Kyle often achieved this title other years with a purebred, but this year the show allowed crossbred entries in order to encourage more participation.

Huffy the Clown entertains Madison, Mallory, and Brendan of Annville, and Daniel and Dillon Kramer, Womelsdorf.

The North Mountain 4-H Club prepared a 32-foot long tunnel and a tent full of fun activities to show that 4-H is for city folk and country folk. Bethany Cole, 10, and Ryan Cole, 14, said about 100 members and 35 leaders worked on the project for about six months.

Ida's Notebook

by

Ida Risser

My family seems to be a traveling one. We recently had a family picnic and quite a few were missing. One sister was taking six weeks to travel across the country in a recreational vehicle while another sister had just returned from a trip to the Grand Canyon. She told us of riding a mule to the bottom of the canyon and how it tried to eat grass at the very edge of the path — scary. One of our sons took his whole family to Hawaii for a week. While another son flew his family to Salt Lake City in Utah.

If you have a garden and really tend it, you are tied down to home territory. That seems to be our case as we freeze sweet corn and pick green beans most everyday. Now my cucumbers are beginning to bear and I'm canning pickles everyday. The cabbage that my husband started in the basement has grown to enormous proportions and the heads are almost too big.

Since the neighbors in an adjoining development take daily walks past our farm, I am able to give my excess vegetables to them. One of them even baked a peach pie for us after we gave her fresh sweet corn from our patch.

The patch has a double electric wire to protect it from the animals. Even so, my husband has set traps and caught five groundhogs so far. Our daughter in New Jersey also set traps and she caught two young raccoons at one time. She tells us that the deer eat all of her flowers too. Oh, for the life of a gardener.

Gardens of Rodef Shalom

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

PITTSBURGH (Allegheny Co.) — Elderhostels have been making a large hit around the world for American citizens over the age of 55 who wish to continue learning in all phases of life.

In conjunction with this, the city of Pittsburgh offers a pilot one-day Elderhostel program featuring subjects that range from the Heinz Chapel to the Rodef Shalom Biblical Botanical Garden.

Co-founder and director of the gardens and responsible for the Elderhostel event is Irene Jacob, who is also the author of "Gardens of North American and Hawaii, A Traveler's Guide."

Complete in biblical detail, the garden features a waterfall, a miniature Sea of Galilee, the River Jordan, and the Dead Sea.

While it does not occupy a large area, the grounds are lush and rich with a wide variety of Jewish researched Biblical plants.

Some of the plants used in modern day gardens can readily be traced to biblical times. A list at Rodef Shalom includes almond, apricot, bay laurel, Cedar of Lebanon, fig, ivy, narcissus, olive, quince, sycamore, tulip walnut, and watercress. Acacia, box bramble, castor oil tree, globe thistle, mulberry, and Russian olive.

Near the miniature Dead Sea, cotton, date palm, flax, henna madder, maritime squill, myrtle, pomegranate, and sea daffodil grow in abundance.

Barley, grape millet saffron, sorghum, sugar, and wheat line the banks of the River Jordan.

Who would have thought tulips would be old enough to be grown in a Biblical Garden and what gardener is not familiar with Star of Bethlehem, poppy, narcissus, crowfoot, chamomile, anemone, and crown daisy?

The huge onion plants so popular in many of today's gardens have Biblical roots as does giant grass, juniper, and willow.

Lemon grass, which grows in almost all herb gardens, had an ancient beginning. So did beans, black cumin, chickpeas, coriander, muskmelon, dandelion, endive, garlic, leek, lentil, lettuce, majorum, sage, thyme, watermelon, and wormwood.

As might be expected poison hemlock can be traced to the Bible.

And, of course, cattails, and papyrus where Baby Moses was laid so lovingly by his Mother traces back to the Bible as do Flowering Rush, Lotus, Rush, and waterlilies.

One of the most frequently mentioned sources of food in the Bible is the grapevine. It appears more than 300 times in every book of the Old Testament except Jonah and Ruth. Grapes were cultivated in all lands bordering the Mediterranean.

Barley has been grown since 5000 B.C. in Egypt and was the cheapest cultivated food obtainable. It is able to survive heat and drought better than any other cereal and ripen in shorter summers than wheat. King Solomon grew a large tonnage of barley to feed his 40,000 horses and unknown number of dromedaries.

Sorghum or great millet is also called "Jerusalem corn" and may have been the "parched corn" which Boaz gave to Ruth. It has been cultivated since 2000 B.C.E. It is a nonirrigated summer crop in Israel.

An Elderhostel group tours the Rodef Shalom Biblical Botanical Garden. Complete in biblical detail, the garden features a waterfall, a miniature Sea of Galilee, the River Jordan, and the Dead Sea.

Some of the plants used in modern day gardens can be traced to biblical times.

The saffron used in today's recipes was used by the Greeks to sprinkle on theater benches. The yellow star which Hitler forced the Jews to wear has roots with Saffron. The yellow color of the plant has always been used to mock Jews. The Greeks forced them to wear yellow hats. Perfume and nail polish were also made from Saffron.

Ezekiel 4:9 reads: "Take thou unto thee wheat and barley, and beans." The beans of the Bible grow to five feet. The small, white sweet-pea flowers are marked with a purple spot, followed by large green pods.

Beans in ancient times were mixed with wheat for flour, eaten fresh, boiled, dried or roasted. The stems were used for camel fodder.

Exodus 16:31: "And the house of Israel called the name thereof Manna;" which is believed to be like Coriander seed.

If eaten in excess, coriander is a narcotic. It is now and was used as a flavoring for food and beverages including gin and vermouth, perfumes, soaps, and had some medicinal uses.

Also in Exodus: "And ye shall take a bunch of Hyssop and dip it in the blood that is in the basin."

Hyssop was used for purification of lepers and as a digestive aid.

If you have ever mistaken Wormwood for a more flavorful herb, you quickly learn of its bitterness if you taste it. This bitterness is mentioned several times in scripture. In Proverbs 5:4: "her end is bitter as wormwood" and, in Jeremiah, 23:15 "Behold I will feed them with wormwood and make them drink the water of gall."

Wormwood is also used as an insect repellent and and as an antiseptic.

While we all know the modern day use of castor oil, it might surprise some to learn that it was once used for lighting. Castor Oil has a low freezing point and is used in the aviation industry today as a lubricant.

The small garden is framed with Biblical trees. Cedar grows abundantly in many parts of Pennsylvania and Psalm 92:13 reads: The righteous shall flourish likes the palm tree; He shall grow like a cedar of Lebanon.

King Solomon used the cedar timber to build the temple in Jerusalem. The trees were floated 200 miles down the coast to Gaff and hauled another 25 miles across land to Jerusalem. It took 183,000 men seven years to build this temple.

A walk through Rodef Shalom Biblical Botanical Garden is a connection to ancient times. The tranquil setting brings the soul in touch with the earth and the many blessings God has bestowed upon us.

Melinda Reveals Championship Secrets

GAY BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

BRUCETON MILLS (W. Va.) — "There are no secrets, just a lot of hard work," Melinda Thomas tells persons interested in how the cows she is showing are kept so clean.

"I don't leave them lay in manure," she says. "I pitch the stalls twice a day." Thus, no indelible manure stains stick to the hide.

It's been a good career for the 20-year-old, 4-H'er who is showing her final year. She isn't complaining about having owned three grand champions during that time.

Besides numerous trophies, purple, blue, and red ribbons — seemingly hundreds representing 11 years of dairy projects — dominate a large portion of the interior walls of Lowell and Phyllis Thomas's house. The testimonials overflowing from their daughter's bedroom also decorate hall ways and the home office. They are lined up on shelves and according to size, occupy floor space, too.

Before she was old enough to show, Thomas used to envy Jeff and Greg, her now-married elder brothers and cousins who already were showing animals. In 1990, her turn came.

"I started with a little March calf and it just grew out of that," she says.

Mayday, an 89-point cow bought to flush, in 1993 took grand champion honors at the Garrett County Holstein Show, McHenry, Md.; the West Virginia Black and White Show at Jackson Mills; reserve champion at the Somerset District Holstein Show, and reserve champion at the West Virginia State Fair in Lewisburg.

Out of the five good eggs flushed from Mayday one of the heifer calves — Mel-T Astre-Mayday-ET — was junior champion at Garrett, Somerset, Jackson Mills, and Lewisburg, in 1996.

Then, on to Harrisburg's All-American Junior Show where the same animal took first place and was named junior champion. "She did well. Everywhere we went she excelled and won," Thomas said. "We decided to go big-time."

So it was off to Louisville, Ky. for the North American International Livestock Exposition. The heifer placed sixth in the open show and third in the junior show.

"The only thing I regret is we didn't take her to Madison to the World Dairy Expo," Thomas says, retrospectively.

"It was the feeling of "I didn't buy her, she was bred and raised here on the farm,"' added Thomas.

Tracy, a 91-point Foothill daughter was 1994 grand champion at Somerset District Holstein Show and Pansy, a 93-point cow, in 1996, was grand champion at Garrett County; grand at the West Virginia Black and White Show and grand at Somerset. Again, in 1997, Pansy was grand champion at Garrett County and Jackson Mills.

Thomas describes the traits that generally characterize a champion. "You have to have a good tall, stylish cow with a good high, wide rear udder and smooth fore-udder placement and good teat placement.

"You like them high and wide because they can carry more milk in their udder. More milk means more money in your pocket," she says.

"I have over 50-head of my own," Thomas says of Mel-T Holsteins, the business name for the registered herd she built from flushing.

Meanwhile, the immediate Thomas clan is cloistered on the fringe of town, surrounded by lush green acreage known to be the Ward Thomas and Sons Dairy. Ward Thomas is her grandfather. About 1,000 acres provide a vista of healthy stalks of corn and other grains that support about 191 head of milking Holsteins.

At one time, Ward Thomas and Sons owned and operated the Grantsville Livestock Auction, Grantsville, Md.

She says that Ezra "Mose" Yoder, herdsman for the farm has been a great help. "Mose would find good cows and dad and mom always supported me," she said gratefully, adding that Ron Kling does the flushing.

Melinda Thomas is pictured with Trojan, the dairy animal the reserve junior champion at the Somerset District Holstein Show 2000 and grand champion at Garrett County (Md.) Holstein Show, 2000.

Tanned to a light golden brown from hours spent working in the sunshine, from her side of the white wrought-iron table on the enclosed porch, Thomas talked about what's next as an illustrations career in 4-H closes. She says one day she, herself, may become a 4-H leader, but not immediately. During summer, she joins the farm's work force.

The extensive lawns, for instance, are hers to mow every week, weed, operate field equipment and run errands, all of which are significant contributions to the overall picture. Cow care, however, is her specialty.

"These cows are my hobby," she says, adding there also are two horses kept for pleasure riding.

"Blue," the Australian blue heeler and constant companion to Thomas goes everywhere she goes including on the four-wheeler.

The West Virginia University junior has two years under her belt in the way of an animal and veterinary science major, however, six more years of study are required before the lover of animals can expect to be a doctor of veterinary medicine.

It is a lofty goal, but she says the most disliked subjects are now behind her.

She is able to maintain a high grade point average that, repeatedly, finds her name on the Dean's list and this fall term of classes will benefit from the awarding of two separate scholarships.

Strongly drawn to the sport of womens' softball, Thomas joined a league. She has played high-school fast pitch, and when a senior, attended the World Series of fast pitch softball, she said.

Rarely does Thomas fall prey to discouragement — the only thing that dampens her usually bright spirits, is a bad grade on a college exam. She also treasures solitude.

The important things Thomas says are getting through school and one day getting married.

In that case Thomas may require the services of a maid. She says, afterall "It's hard for me to do anything in the house. I prefer the outdoors."

In the office of Lowell and Phyllis Thomas is a sampling of ribbons and trophies won by their daughter, Melinda since she started showing dairy animals in 1990.

Melinda Thomas loves to go pleasure riding on "Granny," a Paint, left and "Sandy," a Morgan, at her home in Bruceton Mills, W. Va.

Catch-Up Retirement Planning

FLEMINGTON, N.J. — With 77 million baby boomers (people currently age 35-53) retiring within the next few decades, there is tremendous interest in topics related to retirement planning.

Among the questions being asked is, "What can I do to make up for years that I should have saved, but didn't?"

Unfortunately, compound interest is not retroactive. In other words, you can't earn interest on money you haven't saved.

All hope is not lost, however. In fact, baby boomers have many factors working in their favor.

Many boomers are entering their peak earning years and are spending less as children leave home. In addition, they still have a long investment time horizon of perhaps 30-50 years and can afford to place a significant percentage of their portfolio in "ownership" assets such as individual stocks and growth mutual funds.

Furthermore, steady stock market gains are predicted for at least another decade. And boomers with highly marketable job skills may be able to work for as long as they like or start their own business following retirement.

Many jobs today require brains, not brawn, so physical strength will be less of a concern to older workers in the future than it was in the past.

Basically, there are two ways to catch up financially:

1. Take action to increase retirement savings, and

2. Take action (for example, lifestyle changes) that will decrease the amount of retirement savings required to invest.

Several planning strategies can also be combined (for example, increasing retirement plan contributions and moving to a smaller home in a less expensive area of the country).

Suggested strategies to increase retirement savings include:

- Enrolling in or increasing current contributions to tax-deferred employer savings (for example, 401(k) plan).
- Slashing household expenses to free up money to invest.
- Moonlighting for additional income and to test out post-retirement employment options (for example, small business).
- Investing aggressively (more stock) before and after retirement.
- Investing in industries (for example, health care) predicted to benefit from future demographic trends.

Following are strategies to reduce the amount of money needed for retirement:

- Trade down to a smaller home and invest the difference.
- Move to a less expensive geographic region to reduce expenses.
- Delay retirement to increase savings and postpone withdrawals.
- Work after retirement (for extra income and a daily routine).
- Make the most of an inheritance.
- Make retirement income withdrawals from taxable accounts first.

Remember, a positive attitude is a key factor in investment success. "Late-blooming" 45 and 50 year olds can still save significant sums by the time they retire.

Today is the first day of your financial life. Make the most of it!

Why every fisherman needs these maps

It is estimated that 10% of all the fishermen catch 90% of the fish. Regardless of which group you fall into... there's a sure way to up your odds... simply try new fishing waters. Fish where few fishermen ever fish.

Professor Higbee's Stream Maps are the first and only highly detailed maps of their kind... showing virtually all of the streams, rivers and lakes in each state.

Professor Higbee's® STREAMS

The STREAM MAP OF PENNSYLVANIA was completed in 1965 after a thirty-year effort by Howard Higbee, a former Penn State Professor.

The map is also known as the LOST STREAM MAP to some anglers.

Professor Higbee succeeded in creating a map of the highest detail possible...a map that shows every stream and lake. He painstakingly plotted by hand, the location of 45,000 miles of streams onto a 3 x 5 foot map.

The map sold extremely well -- until it was lost several years later. Incredibly, the printer entrusted with the original drawing and printing plates declared bankruptcy, then carelessly hauled Higbee's 30 years of work to a landfill.

The few remaining dog-eared copies became a prized fisherman's possession. Professor Higbee was offered $400 for one of his last maps. And state agencies were forced to keep their copies under lock and key.

Experts told Professor Higbee that reprints were impossible, because the maps were printed in non-photographic blue.

Then, in 1991, at the age of 91, Howard Higbee's dream came true. Computers made it possible to reprint the map. Holding an updated map, Howard said, "I never thought I'd live to see this day."

Center Announces Ram Test Results

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Pennsylvania's Department of Agriculture's Meat Animal Evaluation Center has announced the results from the annual ram performance testing program which was completed recently.

The 92 rams on test completed the testing period July 11. According to the center, the rams gained extremely well. The animals had their breeding soundness and structural correctness evaluated and were scanned ultrasonically to determine fat thickness and loin-eye area and had their final indexes calculated.

The sale committee thought this was one of the best and deepest groups of rams tested. Therefore they decided to offer the largest group of rams ever to be cataloged.

The offering includes 78 rams including 27 Suffolk spring-born rams, nine junior Hampshires, 18 senior Dorsets, 15 junior Dorsets, three senior Hampshires, one senior Suffolk, one Oxford, two Tunis, and two Southdowns. Penn State expects approximately 60 invitational ewes. There will be many purebred ewes of show quality as well as production-oriented commercial ewes.

The Performance Tested Ram Sale is scheduled Saturday, Aug. 5, at 2 p.m. in the Ag Arena on the campus of Penn State.

A full day of activities is planned. In addition to the Performance Tested Ram Sale and the Invitational Ewe Sale, the sheep producers field day committee is working on a tremendous program with concurrent programs designed for youth and adult audiences.

There is a presentation on the program to explain the national program which provides for a $100 refund on the purchase of a new (genetically superior) ram.

Commercial trade show vendors are also planning to be on hand to exhibit their products and services.

The field day activities are scheduled to begin at 8:45 a.m. in the Ag Arena on the campus of Penn State.

Draft Horse, Mule Show Popular At Great Frederick Fair

The draft horse and mule show has long been a favorite among spectators and participants at The Great Frederick Fair, and this should be no different.

The one-day show gets under way at 8:30 a.m., Sunday, Sept. 17, in the infield at the fairgrounds. The show is one of many shows and activities going on during the 138th version of The Great Frederick Fair. The nine-day fair runs Sept. 15-23 in Frederick, Md.

Sunday's show will be judged by Todd Biddle of Palmyra, Ohio and Jason Eberly of Monclova, Ohio. The daylong show will feature halter classes as well as the popular antique farm implement class, the hitch and cart classes. Halter classes are for exhibitors with registered Belgians, Clydesdales, Percherons or Shire, Suffolk and gelding and unregistered mares. Judging is based on the animal's conformation and animal condition.

"The draft horse and mule show continues to be a popular event at The Great Frederick Fair," said Nancy Hendricks, president of the fair board. "The halter classes are certainly educational because this is where the public can learn how these animals are supposed to look and what they have been bred for."

The other classes are the entertaining portion of the show, both for the exhibitor and the spectators. "This is where the public can see how these exhibitors have trained these horses and mules to work together in team hitches and pull carts and antique farm equipment," Hendricks said.

Open Contests At Delaware County 4-H Fair

Delaware County 4-H invites the public to participate in several contests during the 4-H fair, Aug. 11-12 at the 4-H Farm and Center, Garrett Williamson Foundation, 395 Bishop Hollow Road, Newtown Square.

Details about classes, requirements, and awards are available in the fair booklet at the Cooperative Extension Office, Smedley Park, Springfield, PA 19064-2705, 610-690-2655.

• Open Vegetable Show. Entries accepted Thursday, Aug. 10, from 3 p.m.-7 p.m. Ribbons will be awarded. Growers are asked to submit vegetables according to one of four classes. Large vegetables — one of a kind; medium vegetables — three of one variety; small vegetables — six of one variety; and Garden Basket — four to eight types of vegetables in one basket, grown by the same exhibitor. Vegetables will be judged on trueness to variety type, market quality and freedom from disease, insect damage or waste.

• Stinky Shoe Contest. Contestants of any age are invited to wear their most interesting, used, and stinky shoes into the show ring on Friday, Aug. 11 at 5:30 p.m. Ribbons will be awarded based on the decision of the judge. The judge's decisions are final and totally arbitrary. Come poke fun at your most interesting shoes!

• Watermelon Seed Spitting Contest. Test your skill at spitting watermelon seeds and try to beat last year's winner more than 15-feet! This contest will be held at noon on Saturday, Aug. 12. Classes will be age: 8-12 years; 13-18 years; and adult. Contestants may enter more than once, with three tries per turn. Ribbons will be awarded.

• Silent Auctions. Items donated by members and area businesses will be on display and open for bids from 9 a.m. through 1 p.m., Saturday, Aug. 12. Final bids will be determined at 1:30 p.m., Saturday, Aug. 12.

• Livestock Auction. Market lambs and hogs will be auctioned at 1:30 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 12. Arrangements can be made to cut the meat to the customer's order and packaged by an USDA licensed butcher. This is all-natural, grain-fed meat for your freezer.

In addition to these open contests, 4-H members will show lambs, poultry, pigs, and horses in grooming and showmanship classes. Exhibits will include vegetable and other projects completed by 4-H members.

Visitors can tour the 4-H Center and support the organization through the purchase of refreshments, hayrides, silent auction, or livestock auction items.

New this year will be a trained dog show and craft making. Information will be available on all 4-H programs for youth from ages 8-18. Come and experience 4-H in Delaware County!

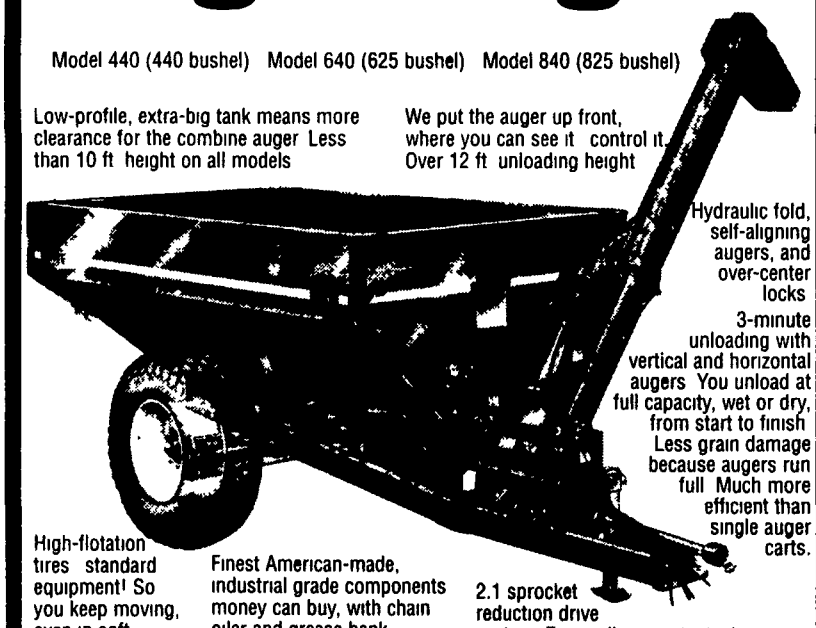
How KINZE designed the world's best Auger Wagon.

Model 440 (440 bushel) Model 640 (625 bushel) Model 840 (825 bushel)

Low-profile, extra-big tank means more clearance for the combine auger Less than 10 ft height on all models

We put the auger up front, where you can see it control it Over 12 ft unloading height



Hydraulic fold, self-aligning augers, and over-center locks

3-minute unloading with vertical and horizontal augers You unload at full capacity, wet or dry, from start to finish Less grain damage because augers run full Much more efficient than single auger carts.

High-flotation tires standard equipment! So you keep moving, even in soft, greasy fields

Finest American-made, industrial grade components money can buy, with chain oiler and grease bank for easy maintenance

2.1 sprocket reduction drive system Especially important when unloading high-moisture grain

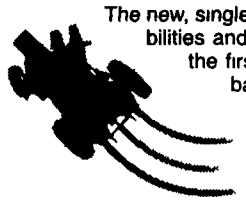
Industry Leading Turning Radius

The revolutionary chassis of the MX Series Magnum improves your overall performance and productivity. In fact, the innovative Surround frame allows for the tightest turning radius in the industry, even with front duals!

Thanks to axle improvements, engine placement and a sleek hood design, the MX Series Magnum can easily turn into 12 30-inch rows with all row crop tire configurations on true 60-inch tread settings



The new, single-piece, sculpted, cast iron Surround frame is the key to the enhanced capabilities and performance of these tractors. It enables the MX Series Magnum to offer the first factory front duals, dramatically improving both traction and flotation. By balancing the chassis, we've significantly reduced the amount of front ballast required. And the frame easily accomodates mounted chemical tanks or loaders, allowing you to perform multiple applications.

erence One Year Makes!

s in history, we have something to be thankful for. But will your combine cut it?

bine Simply the Best?

At Hoober, Inc we believe it's simple to see why a Case-IH Rotary Axial-Flow Combine is better than all other rotary combines Because it s simple A Case-IH Rotary Axial-Flow Combine has only ONE moving part in it's entire threshing/separating process a single large-diameter rotor Open up the side shield on any other rotary combine and compare it to the drive mechanism, and you will see that the Case-IH rotary combine has fewer moving parts, which means fewer problems Because the more moving parts there are, the greater your chance of breaking down

And when it comes to servicing the most productive combine in farming, no dealer understands the Case-IH Rotary Axial-Flow Combine better than Hoober Hoober introduced the Case-IH Rotary Axial-Flow Combine to the East, and our combine service specialists have been working with Axial-Flow technology since 1977

To put more quality grain in the tank than with any other harvesting system, go with the rotary combine and dealer that are simply the best The Case-IH Rotary Axial-Flow Combine and Hoober, Inc

Dairy Farm Tour Aug. 11

HONEY BROOK (Chester Co.) — A dairy farm tour will be conducted on four farms in the area Friday, Aug. 11, from 9 a.m.-3 p.m.

Learn how the dairy farms cut their feed bill while they increase their milk.

Following is the farm tour schedule:

• 9 a.m.-10:30 a.m. Mervin Stoltzfus, 3677 Horseshoe Pike, Honey Brook. Featured will be pasture mats, TMR, tunnel ventilation, and other techniques to create a Pa. RHA of 23,498M, 872F, and 735P. This farm had a 1,317 RHA increase last year.

• 10:30 a.m.-noon. Jonas Stoltzfus, 355 White School Rd., Honey Brook. Tour highlights include a high-volume water system, tunnel ventilation, and pasture mats. This farm, with a 4,000 RHA increase, has records of 23,300M, 803F, and 708P.

• Noon-2 p.m. Mark Stoltzfus, 413 September Rd., Honey Brook. Featured are a 60-foot waterer, excellent heifer facilities, tunnel ventilation, and a new Rissler TMR mixer. Lunch is served on this farm, which has an RHA of 23,377M, 879F, and 757P.

• 2 pm.-3 p.m. Tom and Joy Crothers, 301 Whiteside Dr., Oxford. The tour includes a milking parlor, freestall barn, simple rations, and a high-producing Brown Swiss and Holstein herd. The farm had an approximately 5,000 RHA increase with an RHA of 25,800M.

The tour is sponsored by NuTeam and is co-ponsored by SoyPlus, Triple M Farms, C.E. Sauders and Sons Mill, Mount Joy Dairy Co-Op, Deer Creek John Deere, Fisher & Thompson, Lapp Barn Equipment, and Annlick Farm Supply.

USDA Scientists Rapidly Expand Gene Segments Database

CLAY CENTER, Neb. — Progress by a team of Agricultural Research Service scientists shows that biotechnology's best shot at improving livestock may be to help conventional breeders identify genetically superior animals.

"This team of 15 scientists is generating a vast amount of new genetic information that's being shared with researchers around the world," said Floyd P. Horn, administrator of ARS, the chief research agency of the USDA. The team is based at the Roman L. Hruska U.S. Meat Animal Research Center (MARC) operated by ARS at Clay Center.

The team's findings are accessible through the databases of the National Center for Biotechnology Information (NCBI) Genebank in Washington, D.C., and databases at the Clay Center facility.

In the past year, the team has deciphered 50,000 gene sequences in the cattle genome, and more than 30,000 sequences in swine. Within the next three months, the scientists hope to add 30,000 additional sequences from cattle and 10,000 from swine.

The numbers to date represent about 95 percent of the publicly available information on DNA segments called expressed sequence tags (ESTs) for cattle and almost 90 percent for swine, according to Dan B. Laster, who retired as director of the Clay Center facility on June 30. Laster began assembling the Clay Center team in the early 1990s.

ESTs represent significant parts of genes that determine the proteins produced by certain tissues. "Most of an animal's DNA never seems to do anything," said biochemist Timothy P. Smith, who leads the ARS team. So the scientists focus on two to five percent of the DNA that's turned into RNAs — ribonucleic acids — which are an intermediate step in making proteins.

A similar but small effort is also being conducted by an ARS group in Beltsville, Md. That group is sequencing genes that function in the mammary gland of dairy cattle. The Maryland group is working to identify all of the genes responsible for milk productivity traits and the genes that cause superior animals to produce larger quantities of milk proteins in their mammary glands. By using computers to compare gene sequences from different cows, the researchers will sort out the genes that control milk composition. The Clay Center and Beltsville group work together to deposit the information into the NCBI and Clay Center databases.

According to Steven M. Kappes, a recent member of the MARC genomic team and now ARS National Program Leader for Animal Production and Germplasm, each of many genes may have a small impact on an inherited trait, but when added together they may have great economic importance for a herd and for the livestock industry.

The accelerated pace of gene mapping stems partly from successes by international scientists in the much larger Human Genome Project. Humans and livestock basically have the same genes, but with small differences in sequences and arrangement on chromosomes. Comparisons and contrasts between gene sequences of various species are helping biomedical researchers learn how proteins work and how the human body works, said Kappes.

Gleaner Returns To Kansas Roots

ATLANTA, Ga. — Agco Corporation (NYSE: AG), a major worldwide manufacturer and distributor of agricultural equipment, announced that manufacturing of its Gleaner combines will be returning to Kansas, to within just a few miles of where three brothers from Nickerson introduced the first self-propelled Gleaner combine.

Through all those years of history and evolution, the familiar silver color and Gleaner name have stood for harvest innovation and engineering excellence. Now that storied history has come full circle, with the announcement that Gleaner manufacturing will be located in Hesston, Kan. Gleaner traces its roots to 1923 when Curtis, George, and Ernest Baldwin, all brothers, introduced the combine.

"We're moving our combine manufacturing line to our Agco facility," said Tom Draper, general marketing manager, Gleaner combines. "The move enables Agco to take advantage of a more modern manufacturing plant and to centralize many engineering and production functions at one location."

The facility has served as the manufacturing center for the Hesston hay equipment line. Gleaner combine production is being moved from an Agco operation in Independence, Mo.

The Kansas facility and its employees have been honored many times for product innovation and engineering excellence. "This move exemplifies our commitment to maintain and even strengthen our role as a leader in providing combines for producers in North America," Draper said. "The Kansas facility will enable us to continue the tradition of quality that's synonymous with the Gleaner name. And it will better position our engineering, design, manufacturing, and marketing team to be even more responsive to our customers' changing needs."

That's especially important as harvesting technology moves to sophisticated guidance and yield monitoring systems. All Gleaners come equipped to accept Agco's advanced Fieldstar yield monitoring system, which uses global positioning satellites to relate yield information to field position. Fieldstar mapping software is then used to process accurate field maps, which helps analyze crop and yield data.

Monsanto Guarantees Roundup Ready® System Will Boost Bottom Line

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — Research shows the Roundup Ready® system can boost a soybean grower's bottom line. That's why Monsanto is offering the Bottom-Line Booster Guarantee.™

The program encourages growers to compare the Roundup Ready soybean system in reduced tillage to non-Roundup Ready soybeans with conventional tillage and herbicide programs. If the Roundup Ready system doesn't provide equal or better net income than the traditional system in the comparison, Monsanto will pay each qualified grower up to $10,000.

The Roundup Ready soybean system has three major components.

• Replace tillage with a preplant burndown using Roundup Ultra® or Roundup UltraMAX™ herbicide.

• Buy Roundup Ready soybean seed from any authorized dealer.

• Spray Roundup brand herbicide over the top for proven crop safety.

"Farmers like the weed control they get with Roundup over the top of Roundup Ready soybeans, but the economic benefits are displayed when farmers use the whole system, including reduced tillage," said Monsanto market manager Kurt Rahe. "With the Bottom-Line Booster Guarantee, farmers have everything to win and nothing to lose by making the switch to conservation tillage and Roundup Ready soybeans."

Research at Monsanto Centers of Excellence shows that, on average, no-till soybeans grown in narrow rows add $16 per acre more to a grower's bottom line than conventional soybeans grown in wide rows, noted Rahe.

"Seeding soybeans in no-till, or in a conservation-tillage system with a spring burndown program following limited fall tillage, saves time and money at planting, and yields are at least as good as conventional soybeans in wide rows," he said. "On a 1,000-acre farm, no-till can save as much as 450 hours of time and 3,500 gallons of diesel fuel each year. That's eleven 40-hour weeks in time savings and $4,000 less for diesel at $1.15 per gallon."

Qualifying farmers must sign up by Oct. 15, 2000, indicating the number of no-till/conservation-tillage acres they will enroll in the Bottom-Line Booster Guarantee and how many acres of soybeans, both Roundup Ready and non-Roundup Ready, they intend to plant in crop year 2001 compared to 2000.

The Bottom-Line Booster Guarantee is now available in most of the Plains, Midwest, and eastern United States, except for certain counties in Missouri, Virginia, New Mexico, Oklahoma, and Texas. For more details, complete eligibility requirements and program rules, contact your Monsanto representative or your agricultural retailer, or call 800-ROUNDUP.

Skunk Got You In A Funk? Try These Tips

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — If it looks like someone rototilled a circle on your lawn last night, don't assume you have a strange neighbor. It may be the neighborhood skunk, says a wildlife biologist in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

"Skunks often come into yards to root around for grubs," said Gary San Julian, professor of wildlife resources. "They also get under houses, decks, and sheds. We all know the problem with skunks — if they get scared or you harass them, they spray a very disagreeable odor. This odor is extremely difficult to remove."

Skunk damage is easily differentiated from that of dogs and squirrels because skunks tend to tear up patches in the grass as they search for grubs, San Julian explained. Skunks also have tracks with five toes — although the fifth may be hard to see. Skunk droppings are one to two-inches long, ¼- to ½-inch wide, and often contain parts of insects, skunks' preferred food.

"A skunky odor alone doesn't mean a skunk's still in the vicinity," San Julian said. "A dog, cat, or other animal may have been sprayed." Depending on wind direction, experts say skunks can spray up to six, 12, or 18-feet.

San Julian said the best way to deal with a pesky skunk is to live-trap and move it. No pesticides are registered for use with skunks, and you need to be extremely careful when using fumigants, he said.

"Chicken entrails, sardines, peanut butter or fishy cat food all make good bait," he said. "Cover the trap with canvas or dark plastic to make it dark inside. This probably makes the skunk feel more secure, and it can't see what's going on. Once you've trapped the skunk, slowly, quietly move the trap at least 10 miles to a suitable habitat where it won't harass another landowner. Set the trap down gently and open the door.

"You probably won't get sprayed while trapping," San Jilian said, "because the skunk won't have enough room inside the trap to lift its tail."

People in Pennsylvania need a trapping license to hunt or trap skunks, unless they are damaging property, San Julian said. "Call your local game commission employee or wildlife conservation officer and tell them what you want to do."

If you don't want to get that intimate with a skunk, San Julian suggests calling a wildlife damage control specialist. Your county Penn State Cooperative Extension office keeps lists of specialists registered with the game commission.

To prevent skunks from making dens under houses, sheds or decks, San Julian suggests sealing up potential entries. "Sprinkle flour in front of the holes and watch for footprints leaving the area to make sure the skunk is out from under the house," he said. "Skunks aren't much larger than a small cat and can slip through three- or four-inch spaces."

Skunks are dormant for about one month during the coldest part of the winter. They breed from late February to late March. "You're most likely to run into skunks right before the sun comes up and at dusk," San Julian said. "If you get sprayed, you probably want to destroy your clothes. Burn, bury, or get rid of them.

Although tomato juice works fairly well, the following new solution washes away "eau de skunk" and other odors. In an open container, mix one quart three percent hydrogen peroxide, ¼ cup baking soda, and one teaspoon liquid soap.

"Spray it several times on walls, structures, your dog or yourself, then wash it out," San Julian said. "Don't store this solution — use it all up. Hydrogen peroxide and baking soda mixed together produce a gas that can explode in a container."

If left alone, San Julian said that skunks are peaceful and play an important role in the ecosystem by controlling insects and rodents. They're also fun to watch.

But beware: like foxes, raccoons and bats, skunks can carry rabies. "Rabies has reached epidemic proportions in the northeast in the past 20 years," San Julian said "Because skunks are nocturnal, they usually stay out of sight during the day. If you see a skunk acting strangely in the daytime, or acting aggressively and coming towards you, stay away from it. Call your local wildlife conservation officer. If you find it necessary to destroy the animal, make sure the head is intact because the brain is needed to determine if the animal is rabid. This is particularly important if someone has been bitten."

For more information, see the College of Agricultural Sciences' fact sheet, "Wildlife Damage Control 11: Skunks." Single copies are available free of charge by contacting your county Penn State Cooperative Extension office, by calling the College of Agricultural Sciences Publications Distribution Center at (814) 865-6713, or by downloading a copy from the College of Agricultural Science's publication Web Site at http://pubs-.cas.psu.edu/.

USDA Announces Pork Checkoff Procedures

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Kathryn Heil, county farm service agency (FSA) executive director, announced final procedures and dates for the upcoming referendum on continuation of the pork checkoff program. U.S. Ag Secretary Dan Glickman authorized a vote on continuation of the checkoff program in February.

The congressionally mandated pork checkoff program is funded by assessments collected from producers when hogs are sold. The funds are used for pork promotion, research, and consumer information. Program funds cannot be used to affect the outcome of the referendum vote.

The final referendum rules provide for in-person voting Sept. 19-21, at the Lancaster County FSA Office, located in the Farm and Home Center, 1383 Arcadia Road, Lancaster.

Absentee ballots may be requested beginning Aug. 1. However, absentee ballots for producers will become available from the Lancaster County FSA Office from Aug. 18 through Sept. 18.

The public is invited to observe the counting of the ballots at the Lancaster County FSA Office on Nov. 29, 2000 at 1 p.m.

Producers who have owned and sold one or more pigs or hogs at any time from Aug. 18, 1999 through Aug. 17, 2000 are eligible to vote. Producers are to vote in the county office where the producer's farm records are administratively located or, for other producers, in the county where the producer owns hogs or pigs. The final rule will be published in the Federal Register July 13.

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — The Farmers' Market Federation of New York announces New York State Farmers' Market Week, Aug. 6-12, as sponsored by Sen. Nancy Larraine Hoffman and adopted by the New York State Senate.

This honor shows that New York State recognizes the value of farmers' markets to the state's economy, to the agricultural community, and to the local neighborhoods.

The Central New York Regional Market in Syracuse will be hosting Huck Finn Days Aug. 12-13. There will be frog jumping contests and other activities relating to the Mark Twain novel. There will even be special visits by Huck Finn and Becky Thatcher! And if car racing is your thing, Corning's Market Street Farmers' Market will be combining their Farmers' Market Week festivities with NASCAR Week events.

Vegetable, Small Fruit Field Day Aug. 14

ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — The 2000 Pennsylvania Vegetable and Small Fruit Field Day is scheduled Aug. 14 here at the Russell E. Larson Research Center.

Growers will have the opportunity to see firsthand the research projects under way by Penn State at the research center.

The center is located 11 miles west of State College on Rt. 45. The event is being sponsored jointly by Penn State University's College of Agricultural Sciences and the Pennsylvania Vegetable Growers Association.

For growers in southeastern Pennsylvania, a bus to the field day will pick up growers at the Montgomery County 4-H Center and the Kutztown Produce Auction and bring them to Rockspring. The cost of the bus, which is sponsored by Penn State Cooperative Extension, is $50 per person and includes the field day registration fee and lunch. For more information, contact John Berry at (610) 391-9840 or James Sargent at (215) 345-3283.

The tentative schedule for the day's events is as follows:

• 8 a.m. Registration at the Horticulture Farm. Coffee and donuts will available. Growers can also visit with exhibitors.

• 9 a.m. Tours of research plots. Researchers and support staff will be in the field to answer questions and comment about their research. Projects at the horticulture farm include weed control studies on various crops; variety evaluation studies on snap bean, tomato, pumpkin, potato, sweet corn, summer squash, and spinach; tomato breeding for late blight and early blight resistance; sweet corn nutrition, irrigation, and spacing study; colored mulch (polyethylene) evaluation of nondegradable and degradable types; paper mulch evaluation with tomato, pepper, and cantaloupe; high tunnel production with multiple cropping of horticultural crops in 24 research high tunnels; strawberry weed control evalution of the effectiveness of several new herbicide materials; and raspberry research.

• 12 p.m. Lunch. A hearty sandwich accompanied by fresh fruits and vegetables, other picnic items, and beverage will be provided.

• 1:30 p.m. Demonstrations, The following equipment demonstrations are currently planned. Additional ones may be scheduled as well: Monosem planter for onions, sweet corn, snap beans, and no-till pumpkins; stonefork for removing roots, rocks, and stones; Imants spading machine; stone burior; tined weeder; CDA herbicide sprayer; Airblast sprayer; vacuum seeder; transplanter tours of research plots at plant and entomology farms (a bus will be available to take interested persons to see research plots on these nearby farms).

• 5 p.m. Adjourn.

A highlight of the field day will be the 24 high tunnels that are part of the Center for Plasticulture at Penn State.

Following is an outline of the trials being conducted in the tunnels.

• Tomato Variety Trial — Tunnels 1-4. A tomato variety trial is being conducted evaluating eight varieties: Mountain Spring, Mountain Fresh, Royal Mountie, Sunbeam, Daybreak, Ultra Sweet, Seedway 10250, and NC Grape. The tomato varieties will be evaluated for use in high tunnels with special emphasis on earliness, yield, and size of fruit. After the tomato crop, a green manure crop will be planted in three of the four tunnels and incorporated the following spring prior to again planting tomatoes.

• Small Fruit Raspberry and Thornless Blackberry Variety Trial — Tunnels 5 and 6. An evaluation of two methods of production, the "Earth Boxes growing system" and ground culture, will be conducted for brambles (raspberries and thornless blackberries). Tunnel 5 will have the Earth Boxes and Tunnel 6 will have the bare ground culture. The raspberry cultivars are Heritage and Autumn Britten, which are primocane-bearers, and Triple Crown is a thornless blackberry cultivar. (This summer these two tunnels will be converted to the Penn State High Tunnel Design).

• Potato Transplant Trial — Tunnel 7. A round white potato cultivar has been transplanted in four sets of double rows with an in-row spacing of 12 inches. Drip irrigation and fertigation will be used. Once the potatoes have been harvested, ornamental gourds will be planted on four raised beds covered with plastic mulch and using drip irrigation tape. (During the summer, this tunnel will be converted to the Penn State High Tunnels Design). Then a late fall planting of leafy greens — one row each of kale, kohlrabi, loose-leaf lettuce, and endive — will be made.

• Summer Squash and Okra — Tunnel 8. Two rows in this high tunnel will be planted with zucchini squash spaced two feet apart and the other two rows will be planted with double rows of transplanted okra cultivar Annie Oakley. The in-row spacing will be 15 inches. Drip irrigation and fertigation will be used. (During the summer this tunnel will be converted to the Penn State High Tunnels Design). A green manure crop will be established for the winter.

• Spinach — Tunnel 9. This tunnel was direct-seeded to three double rows of spinach spaced 8 inches apart in the row and 12 inches between the double rows. The spinach will be harvested the first and second week in May. Once the spinach is harvested, slicing cucumbers will be transplanted on four rows of newly applied IRT plastic mulch and drip irrigation tape. The cucumbers will be transplanted on a 12-inch by 12-inch spacing and will be planted in staggered double rows.

• Bedding Plants — Tunnel 10. The following varieties are planted in four rows on and IRT Plastic mulch with drip irrigation and floating row cover over some of the plants (temperatures have been monitored since last fall): Acnllea Anthea, Campanula -Kent Belle, Leucanthemum- Summer Snowball, Stokesia-Purple Parasols, Alehemilla Mollies , Campan-Chettle Charm, Chelone, Crocosmia Lucifer, Sedum- Art Joy, Solidaster- Lemore, Salvia nem.,- Plumosa. This tunnel will be maintained for cut flower/bedding plant research.

• Transplanted Romaine Lettuce — Tunnel 11. Romaine lettuce was transplanted on Feb. 14, 2000 in double rows in the following replicated treatments: paper mulch from International Paper, bare ground and Earth Boxes covered with black mulch film. The spacing between the double rows was 12 inches with plants spaced 8 inches apart in the row. The lettuce was harvested the first week in May and Zavory Peppers developed by Dr. Paul Grun will be transplanted on four rows of newly applied IRT plastic mulch and drip irrigation tape. The peppers will be transplanted on a 12-inch by 12-inch spacing and will be planted in staggered double rows.

• Potato Seedpiece — Tunnel 12. Seedpieces of two varieties — Early Dark Red Norland (an early, red-skinned, white flesh variety) and W8475R, a small B size red-skinned, white flesh potato — were planted on March 17, 2000 in four rows with two replications. The in-row spacing was 8 inches with the double rows being staggered. The four rows were covered mechanically with red plastic mulch and drip irrigation tape. One half of the potatoes were covered with a Typar, a floating row cover. The row cover material did enhance the emergence and growth of the potatoes as has been observed in the field. The plastic mulch and drip irrigation tape will be removed prior to digging the potatoes. Once the potatoes are harvested, cauliflower will be transplanted on four raised beds with drip irrigation. The spacing for the cauliflower will be double rows 12 inches by 16 inches. The potential for establishment of an early winter cover crop following the cauliflower will evaluated.

• Pepper Project — Tunnels 13, 14, 16, 17, 18, 19, 21, 23 and 24. This is a M.S. research project being conducted by Eric Burkhart under Dr. Lamont's supervision. The title is "Integrated Production of Bell Pepper (Capsicum annuum L. cultivar Paladin) using Compost, Drip Irrigation, and Season Extension Technology." The objectives of the project are to assess and document the effects of composted manure applications on growth and yield of bell peppers, both alone and in combination with synthetic fertilizers; to assess and document any differences in bell pepper growth and yield resulting from the use of two dissimilar mulch types; and to determine the effectiveness of utilizing high tunnels for early production of bell peppers.

• Hairy Vetch — Tunnels 15, 20, and 22. Hairy vetch will be planted and allowed to mature and dry down into a brown mat. Broccoli will be transplanted in four double rows into the mat. The spacing of the broccoli will be 12 inches between the double rows and 12 inches in the row. Drip irrigation and fertigation will be used to supply moisture and additional fertilizer.

To preregister, call the Pennsylvania Vegetable Growers Association at (717) 694-3596. Registration is $15 per person if a reservation is made by Aug. 9. Registration covers the costs of lunch, morning and afternoon refreshments, and other costs. Persons making reservations made after Aug. 9 or walk-in registrants will be charged an extra $5. Cornell To Host Fruit Field Day, Equipment Show Aug. 17

GENEVA, N.Y. — Cornell University will host the Fruit Field Day and Equipment Show 2000 at the New York State Agricultural Experiment Station here Aug. 17 from 8 a.m.-4:30 p.m.

Fruit growers, consultants, and industry personnel are invited to tour field plots and learn about the latest research and extension efforts in fruit production by researchers from Geneva and Ithaca. The focus will be on all commodities key to New York's $300 million fruit industry — apples, grapes, raspberries, strawberries, peaches, pears, cherries, and nectarines.

New this year will be equipment demonstrations by New York, Pennsylvania, Michigan, and Ontario dealers. Tunnel, electrostatic and airblast sprayers for apples and grapes, laser planting machines for grapes, micro sprinklers for irrigation, infrared sensors, tillage tools, mechanized planters and harvesters, tractors, and GPS mapping systems and more will be demonstrated next to research plots.

Tours will highlight fruit breeding and enology, production systems, integrated pest management, physiology, water and nutrient management, fruit varieties and rootstocks, organic production systems, growth regulators, GIS-based crop management, and the new vinification and brewing laboratory.

Admission is free. Lunch will be provided courtesy of industry sponsors. Nathan Rudgers, Commissioner of New York State Agriculture and Markets Department, and Susan Henry, the new dean of Cornell's College of Agriculture and Life Sciences, will address the crowd at lunch.

The event will be conducted on the Station's Fruit and Vegetable Research Farm South, 1097 County Road No. 4, one mile west of Pre-Emption Road, in Geneva. Look for signs.

The event is co-sponsored by the New York State Agricultural Experiment Station and the New York State Horticultural Society.

For information regarding equipment or dealer sponsorship, contact Art Agnello at 315-787-2341. For information about the event, a map, and a more complete schedule as it becomes available, click http://www.nysaes.cornell.edu/fieldday2000.html

ONCE A DAY DOES PAY

More than 30 million Americans consume milk just once a day (mainly at breakfast or dinner), but they drive nearly 20% of total fluid milk volume, or 1.2 billion gallons.

"We Like The Consistency of the Mix"
– Nelson & Dennis Weaver, Weaver Homestead Dairy

"Our Roto-Mix mixer from Lapps Barn Equipment processes baled hay just the way it needs to be done. It gives a nice coarse mix, with average stem length 2" to 4"—ration passes the particle size test with flying colors. Processed hay almost never wraps around the augers in our Weaverline feed cart.

"We purchased the Roto-Mix 414 in 1998. It has been reliable and trouble free."

Weaver Homestead Dairy milks 133 Holsteins with a herd average of 22,300 lbs.

- Ration: haylage, corn silage, dry baled alfalfa hay, brewers grain, minerals, grain, etc.
- Feed cost per 100 lbs. milk 1999 average $4.24
- Alfalfa hay is purchased from Kansas, 4x4 bales. The hay is processed through Hay Processor System of the Roto Mix Mixer
- 4% dry hay is fed (300lbs per mix)
- Farm 100 acres (corn for corn silage and alfalfa for haylage)
